

CALIFORNIA COASTAL COMMISSION

NORTH CENTRAL COAST DISTRICT
455 MARKET STREET, SUITE 300
SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94105
PHONE: (415) 904-5260
FAX: (415) 904-5400
WEB: WWW.COASTAL.CA.GOV

Th10a

A-2-SNF-24-0009 (Great Highway Vehicular Restrictions)

May 9, 2024

CORRESPONDENCE

From: Joey Kotfica
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: board of appeals 2/7/2024 meeting comment
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 5:44:04 PM

---

Dear Commissioners,

I am writing in support of maintaining the Upper Great Highway Park permit. The "Great Walkway" has been a tremendous enhancement to city infrastructure.

On the weekends, when I bike on the great highway, I see all manner of citizens out: seniors, families with young children, athletes, cyclists learning to ride, and more. It's a proper melting pot that should be celebrated and maintained.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

Thank you,

Joey Kotfica
94117

From: Rory O'Donnell
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Board of Appeals Meeting - Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:14:25 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Rory O'Donnell and I am a resident of the Outer Sunset District.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I frequently use the Great Highway for bike riding on weekends and holidays, as it is a great resource for walking and biking, and is utilized by numerous people for these purposes every week.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals.

Thank you,

Rory O'Donnell

From: Rory O'Donnell
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Board of Appeals Meeting - Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:14:25 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Rory O'Donnell and I am a resident of the Outer Sunset District.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I frequently use the Great Highway for bike riding on weekends and holidays, as it is a great resource for walking and biking, and is utilized by numerous people for these purposes every week.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals.

Thank you,

Rory O'Donnell

From: Jennifer Weiser
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rcllyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Board of Appeals Meeting - public support - Letter - Great HYW
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 2:46:34 PM
Attachments: Letter-Support-GreatHWY-Great Highway Weekend Promenade.pdf

---

Dear Commissioners,

RE: Board of Appeals Meeting. Wednesday, February 7, 2024 5pm

My name is Jennifer Weiser and I am a resident of the Haight-Ashbury neighborhood.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I am a cyclist and urban hiker, and I love this city. The way I see it, the Great Highway Weekend Promenade is something this city can be so proud of, and this innovative approach to increasing, embracing, and fostering multi-recreational spaces can be a role model for other large urban centers. When I am out riding and walking in this fantastic car-free space, I am connecting with the historical sand dunes of pre-San Francisco and the iconic coastline of my city – for miles! Miles of coastline recreation space that I can safely ride my bike and hear the natural sound of this landscape without the rush of cars. And, from my experience, I can assure you that I am not the only one who finds the weekend promenade special and fantastic.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals.

Thank you.

Warmly,

Jennifer Weiser
Haight-Ashbury
jen.w.librarian@gmail.com
650-942-7713

From: Lawrence Rhodes
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Board of Appeals Meeting Wednesday, February 7, 2024 5pm
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 1:28:14 PM

---

I think, as an avid cyclist and car driver, that closing the Great Highway for anything other than major 3 day weekends is madness. Cars are forced into neighborhoods not suited for high traffic loads. I don't ride for pleasure though it is a pleasure to ride. I ride to shop, get to work, etc. The free flow of all forms of transportation is vital to a smooth running society. I would be for the closure if no other alternative was available. However we have Golden Gate Park. A Mecca for bicyclists. I used to enjoy driving through the park on my way to work in Marin. I can no longer do so, but I think it is a wise move. JFK is a perfect place to learn to ride and have family outings. I do ride there to get to work in the Golden Gate Park Band. So I still get in a car free space at least once a week in the Summer. Thanks for the attention and please be reasonable on this issue. There is plenty of space on either side of the Great Highway that is always available for walking and riding. I see no need for closure to motor vehicles except, again, for holidays. That is when they would be used mostly. In my opinion. Sincerely,
Lawrence Rhodes, Bernal Heights.

From: Harold Klingsporn
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: Board of Appeals re: Great Highway
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 8:24:08 AM

---

My name is Harold Klingsporn and I live in the Mission.

Please maintain the Planning Commission's Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and hence reject the appeals against it.

Almost every weekend, I bike from the Mission over to the Great Highway and enjoy the car free ride up/down the few miles of car free road.

So I'd very much like you to uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Great Highway. Thank you.

Harold

From: Nichelle Wyatt-Whyte
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: Bodega Bay Protected Views
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:18:25 AM

---

Hello,

I am curious if there is someone at the Coastal Commission who can speak to Bodega Bay protected views on the coast for homes. I am possibly buying a home on the coast and I am hoping to find out if the views are protected and what that entails. Thanks for your time!

Also happy to chat by phone (707) 527-2652

Thanks,
Nichelle

Sent from my iPhone

From: Waller Crenshaw
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; Rachel Clyde;
MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org; prestonstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Appeal -Keep Bicycles on Costal Highway
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:39:41 AM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My wife Misako and I Waller Crenshaw reside in Haight Ashbury neighborhood.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

We ride our bicycles every day in the beautiful car free golden gate park to the ocean. On weekends we have a bonus ride on the beautiful car free coastal highway. It is so nice to see everyone from the neighborhood walking their dogs, riding bikes with their young children, and just walking. This is a true treasure for our city. Let's keep it car free.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals.

Thank you.

Waller and Misako

From: Shawn Troedson
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 2:23:40 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Shawn Troedson and I am a resident of Dogpatch.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I love biking from one end of SF to the other and being able to ride along the coast safely. I also frequent the small businesses in the neighborhoods close to the Great Highway significantly more now than before the pilot project as it creates a much better ease of access and atmosphere than before. The community activation on the Great Highway has also been a major positive to SF as a whole, even for someone who lives on the other side of the city.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Shawn Troedson
650.521.4600

From: Terry Erickson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; brian.stokle@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 8:49:26 PM

---

Hi Planning Commissioners,

My name is Terry Erickson and I live at 3724 Quintara Street in the Sunset District of San Francisco.

I'm emailing you ask you all to please continue to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and reject the appeals against it.

I had no idea that there might an appeal to have traffic on the highway during weekends and am quite upset that this could happen. Stopping traffic on the Great Highway is the best thing that resulted from Covid and if I had my way the highway area would not allow cars at all 7 days a week. There are so many people out of the highway biking and walking whenever there are no cars on the road, including myself. I urge all of you to go there on a weekend and see how many families and young kids are out there biking, roller skating, skateboarding or walking, getting exercise and breathing fresh air. It's a safe place to be and not have to worry about traffic. Plus the ocean views are spectacular. It's really a fun place to go and hang out. On a warm sunny day there are so many people that it's often hard to find parking on Quintara near where we live. On these days it appears to be one of the most popular places in the City with people coming from all over, especially with little kids and lots of bikes! It's very nice to see so many people doing healthy activities and being outdoors :-)

As I'm sure you know, the current pilot was approved by the SF Board of Supervisors and Mayor London Breed in December 2022. An additional reason to continue the pilot is for city agencies to be able to collect data needed to figure out future plans for the Great Highway.

I strongly urge you all to continue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals.

Thank you very much,
Terry Erickson

From: Gary Levenberg
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 12:12:41 PM

---

RE Board of Appeals Meeting
Wednesday, February 7, 2024 5pm

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Gary Levenberg and I am a resident of SF for over 40 years, since 1993 in Noe Valley.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I am and have been a biker rider all my life for both recreation and transportation. As have my grown children who continue to ride with their families (one still in SF). I ride every day and seek out paths with the fewest cars. The list is not long here in SF - The Great Highway is probably the longest and safest of any bike trail in SF. The Golden Gate Park has JFK and mixed used trails. The Presidio has slow streets and mixed use trails. And The Embarcadero, Marina Blvd and Lake Merced have much improved mixed use trails. Please keep this trail open and safe for mixed use (of course except cars).

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Gary Levenberg
270 Valley

From: Robert E. White
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 9:44:45 PM

---

I write in support of the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and urge the Board of Appeals to reject the appeals that could endanger the continuation of this pilot project.

I am a senior and a regular user of the Great Highway when available through the pilot project. I travel to and from the Great Highway by e-bike as part of my efforts to stay in shape and get outdoors. I am definitely not alone in that regard. It is a huge benefit to the quality of life for many San Franciscans.

The value of the project to me, and to people like me, is inestimable. I do not believe that the pilot project unduly impinges on other stakeholders, certainly not unduly due to its restriction to the weekend.

It would be a real loss if the pilot project is not continued. For that reason I respectfully urge that the Board of Appeals reject the pending appeals that could end this very useful pilot program.

Sincerely,

Robert E. White
50 Fifth Avenue
San Francisco, CA 94118
Telephone: \(415\) 789-6151789-6151)
Facsimile: \(415\) 418-6001418-6001)
e-mail: rew@rwhitesf.com

From: Michelle Ashe
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Permit Great Highway
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 2:28:01 PM

---

Greetings

My name is Michelle Ashe and I am a resident of Bernal Heights. I grew up in the Sunset District and my elderly mother still lives there in our family home.

I am writing to urge you to please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I love riding my bike on the Great Highway promenade with my husband. The scenery is beautiful and I feel safe from cars as I enjoy it. This pilot project provides safe space to enjoy the coastline in a healthy and sustainable way for people of all ages, from the neighborhood and from all parts of the community. It is a joy to experience!

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

It is vital to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect the data to make good decisions about the future of the Great Highway. Please reject the appeals against it.

Thank you for your attention.

Michelle Ashe

From: Laurie Mackenzie
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org; brian.stokle@sfgov.org
Subject: Coastal Zone Permit
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:49:37 PM
Attachments: 1707256067610

---

Tuesday, February 6th, 2024

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Laurie Mackenzie and I am a resident of the Mission District

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I am an avid walker and hiker and fully support more car free zones and for longer times in San Francisco. I regularly walk on Shotwell and Sanchez streets and try and get out to the coast when possible. My husband is a bike rider and I feel more secure when he is riding on safer streets with less car traffic when he does his long loop rides of the city on the weekends. The car free zones and streets have enlivened our communities, helped us connect with our fellow SF residents and helped to create clearer air and more healthy environments for everyone.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Laurie Mackenzie
lauriemackenzie59@gmail.com

Email Addresses:

brian.stokle@sfgov.org, boardofappeals@sfgov.org, engardiostaff@sfgov.org,
rclyde@sfbike.org, MelgarStaff@sfgov.org, NorthCentralCoast@coastal.ca.gov,
chanstaff@sfgov.org

From: mattnieder@aol.com
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Comment for Board of Appeals Meeting regarding Extension of the Coastal Zone Permit for Upper Great Highway Project
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 2:02:40 PM

---

Board of Appeals Meeting

Wednesday, February 7, 2024 5pm

<https://www.sf.gov/meeting/february-7-2024/board-appeals-hearing-february-7-2024>

City Hall, 1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place Room 416

Or call in with Zoom

To SF Board of Appeals Commissioners:

My name is Matthew Nieder and I live in the Mission.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

The Great Highway is indeed great because it borders a unique piece of the California coast called Ocean Beach. This is a natural resource that is not only special from an ecological viewpoint but one of the most accessible National nature reserves in the USA. It can be and is appreciated and used by people for various reasons in the most part sharing it in a generous respectful way. Making the Great Highway free from motorized vehicles during the daytime complements general access and use of Ocean Beach. Fewer people will get run over and more people will be able to walk, run, skate, and ride their bicycles to their favorite or maybe even a new spot to access the beach. Considering the Great Highway just another way to get from point A to point B as quickly as possible is short sighted. We already have many such roads and don't really need the Great Highway for that purpose in light of its critical location.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

mattnieder@aol.com

From: Nate Gentner
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Do NOT allow cars on the Great Highway!
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 4:04:16 PM

---

Board of Appeals Meeting

Wednesday, February 7, 2024 5pm

<https://www.sf.gov/meeting/february-7-2024/board-appeals-hearing-february-7-2024>

City Hall, 1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place Room 416

Or call in with Zoom

Public comment script:

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Nathan and I am a resident of Alamo Square.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

My family including my 2 kids, and I have frequently enjoyed the Great Highway on a weekly basis since it was closed to dangerous vehicle traffic. Please keep the Great Highway open for the community to bike and skate.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Nathan

From: Read Vanderbilt
To: MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; brian.stokle@sfgov.org; chanstaff@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; info@greathighwaypark.com
Subject: For my family, please Reject appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065
Date: Wednesday, January 31, 2024 3:09:11 PM

---

Dear Commissioners,

This is super important for my family and my neighborhood. Closing the upper Great Highway, Friday afternoons and weekends has been a great compromise. I initially was opposed to allowing cars back. And now I think it's a good balance. Let's please uphold that.

I am writing to ask that you uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and that you reject appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

As one of the thousands of San Franciscans who visit Great Highway Park every weekend to walk, roll, jog, bike, and simply enjoy the Pacific Ocean, the pilot program is crucial for my access to and enjoyment of the shoreline. This permit simply maintains the existing compromise approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in 2022 and furthers the objectives of the Coastal Act and San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan by enhancing recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and providing safe space for kids, seniors, and the entire community to benefit from the coast. Maintaining this pilot allows City agencies to collect data and perform community engagement to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

In addition, the permit authorizes important traffic calming in the Outer Sunset. This has greatly improved the safety of the neighborhood and are vital to my safety when I walk and bike to Ocean Beach and nearby businesses.

Thank you,

From: ExecutiveStaff@Coastal
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; Rexing.Stephanie@Coastal
Subject: FW: Public Comment: Tomales Bay State Park Forest Health and Wildfire Resilience Plan
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 10:28:58 AM
Attachments: Abby Cunningham Comments - TBSP Forest Health and Wildfire Resilience Plan 012924.pdf

---

---

From: Abby <abbywords@gmail.com>
Sent: Monday, January 29, 2024 4:53 PM
To: ExecutiveStaff@Coastal <ExecutiveStaff@coastal.ca.gov>
Subject: Fwd: Public Comment: Tomales Bay State Park Forest Health and Wildfire Resilience Plan

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Abby <abbywords@gmail.com>
Date: Mon, Jan 29, 2024 at 4:13 PM
Subject: Public Comment: Tomales Bay State Park Forest Health and Wildfire Resilience Plan
To: Hardcastle, Bree@Parks <Bree.Hardcastle@parks.ca.gov>, Shafer, Cyndy@Parks <Cyndy.Shafer@parks.ca.gov>
Cc: <Effie.Turnbull-Sanders@coastal.ca.gov>, <dayna.bochco@coastal.ca.gov>, <Caryl.Hart@coastal.ca.gov>, <Susan.Lowenberg@coastal.ca.gov>, <Ann.Notthoff@coastal.ca.gov>, <Linda.Escalante@coastal.ca.gov>, <mike.wilson@coastal.ca.gov>, <Katie.Rice@coastal.ca.gov>, <Paloma.Aguirre@coastal.ca.gov>, <Meagan.Harmon@coastal.ca.gov>, <Roberto.Uranga@coastal.ca.gov>, <Justin.Cummings@coastal.ca.gov>, René Voss <renepvoss@gmail.com>, Chad Hanson <cthanson1@gmail.com>, Jinesse Reynolds <jrey94925@gmail.com>

Hi Bree,

Thanks for giving me the opportunity to comment on the Tomales Bay State Park Forest Health and Wildfire Resilience Plan.

We all have a vested interest in getting things right when it comes to protecting this beautiful, magical, spectacular place!

Chainsaws, chippers and pesticides are no way to go.

I trust you're receiving lots of public feedback on this important issue.

Thanks for all you do,

Abby Cunningham

From: ExecutiveStaff@Coastal
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: FW: Tomales fire restoration
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 10:29:48 AM

---

---

From: Spirit Lynn Wiseman <spiritji@aol.com>
Sent: Sunday, January 28, 2024 9:35 PM
To: Hardcastle, Bree@Parks <Bree.Hardcastle@parks.ca.gov>; cyndy.shafer@park.ca.gov;
ExecutiveStaff@Coastal <ExecutiveStaff@coastal.ca.gov>
Subject: Tomales fire restoration

To Bree and to Whom it may Concern,

As a year round swimmer in Tomales bay I have a very intimate relationship with the Birds, animals, tree's and plant life in the Shell Beach area.

As I said at the Marconi Center night, this area is Sacred land.....the elemental world is very strong and has a valuable healing presence that serves many. It is not ordinary land and in no way should it be being subjected to forest massacre in the name of forest management. I am good friends with my ravens and seagulls and even the coyote girl and do not want to see their habitat endangered or disturbed in any way.

Chainsaws and herbicides should NOT be allowed under any circumstance.....Inverness is Inverness we don't want some kind of manicured forest with the forest floor cleared out and habitat destroyed in the name of fire prevention.....

I have personally seen what happens when these gangs of guys chainsawing move across the landscape. Plus they then leave all the dead wood which increases fire danger.....Go look at Lake Lagunitas.

They came here to West Fairfax and chopped down a tree I had grown from seed which was 10 feet tall and alone in a field.....even if I set it on fire myself it was not going to catch the town on fire!!!!

There seems no common sense or sensitivity when the gang is set loose with their chainsaws.

A small example of lack of common sense and sensitivity is there was a beautiful foxglove on the trail down to Shell. A fence post was replaced and they took out the foxglove.....it was not in the way of the post and there was no reason to destroy this beautiful plant .....If this is small scale you can imagine what it will look like large scale.

Please do not allow this project to move forward.....nature is a valuable healer and people desperately need her healing these days.....This is no ordinary land, it is sacred and must be preserved not massacred.

Spirit Lynn Wiseman
9 Herrera Dr
Fairfax, Calif 94930
415-847-4828

PS Please bring in the native people who actually have a history here on this land and give them a seat at the table....

.

Spirit Lynn Wiseman

Global Real Estate Advisor

ENGEL & VÖLKERS Fairfax | Ross Valley | SGV

Licensee of Engel & Völkers U.S. Holdings, Inc.

850 Sir Francis Drake Blvd

San Anselmo, CA 94960

USA

Mobile: 415-847-4828

Internet: spiritwiseman.evusa.com

Mail to: spirit.wiseman@evrealestate.com

DRE# 01210864

<http://www.zillow.com/profile/spiritwiseman/>

From: SF Carl
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Saturday, February 3, 2024 10:35:57 PM

---

Hello,

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Thank you,
Carl Stein

From: Nico Pitney
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; info@greathighwaypark.com; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway bills
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 9:30:58 AM

---

Dear Commissioners, I co-sign the letter below. Please reject the appeals that would roll back the progress made toward bringing the Great Highway Park to life. Great cities like San Francisco cannot stay great without effective caretakers. The Great Highway Park has organically become such a vibrant space for so many people to enjoy their community in healthy ways. What a rare gift -- please protect it!

Nico Pitney
SF resident 11 years

//

I am writing to ask that you uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and that you reject appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

As one of the thousands of San Franciscans who visit Great Highway Park every weekend to walk, roll, jog, bike, and simply enjoy the Pacific Ocean, the pilot program is crucial for my access to and enjoyment of the shoreline. This permit simply maintains the existing compromise approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in 2022 and furthers the objectives of the Coastal Act and San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan by enhancing recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and providing safe space for kids, seniors, and the entire community to benefit from the coast. Maintaining this pilot allows City agencies to collect data and perform community engagement to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

In addition, the permit authorizes important traffic calming in the Outer Sunset. This has greatly improved the safety of the neighborhood and is vital to my safety when I walk and bike to Ocean Beach and nearby businesses.

From: SF Public Works Great Highway Notification
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: Great Highway Closed - 02-05-2024
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:10 AM

---

Please click here to acknowledge receipt of this message

The Great Highway is Closed from Lincoln Way to Sloat Boulevard in both directions.

For more information call 311.

From: San Francisco Public Works

From: Leslie LaskinReese
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Cc: sdlreese@comcast.net
Subject: Great highway closure
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 3:36:08 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Leslie and I am a resident of the outer Richmond district. I ride the great highway nearly every weekend, sometimes multiple times. This beautiful stretch of highway is packed every weekend with pedestrians, cyclists, families and the elderly enjoying our beautiful coastline together.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I ride the great highway nearly every weekend, sometimes multiple times. This beautiful stretch of highway is packed every weekend with pedestrians, cyclists, families and the elderly enjoying our beautiful coastline together. I also travel to the sunset for groceries on the weekend and have no issue finding a safe alternate route.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Leslie LaskinReese
LeslieLaskinReese.com
415-336-5203
Sent from my phone

From: Benji Whalen
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org;
MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway Coastal Zone Permit
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:29:40 PM

---

Hi, I am a resident of the Outer Sunset. Please uphold the permit to maintain pedestrian and bike access Friday pm - Sunday. My family takes full advantage of this access, and we appreciate that many other residents are now able to enjoy the area in new ways, enjoying the natural space and bringing a new atmosphere to the neighborhood.

Thank you,
Benji Whalen
2018 47th Ave

From: Laurie Mackenzie
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; brian.stokle@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway Coastal Zone Permit
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:47:22 PM

---

Tuesday, February 6th, 2024

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Laurie Mackenzie and I am a resident of the Mission District

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I am an avid walker and hiker and fully support more car free zones and for longer times in San Francisco. I regularly walk on Shotwell and Sanchez streets and try and get out to the coast when possible. My husband is a bike rider and I feel more secure when he is riding on safer streets with less car traffic when he does his long loop rides of the city on the weekends. The car free zones and streets have enlivened our communities, helped us connect with our fellow SF residents and helped to create clearer air and more healthy environments for everyone.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Laurie Mackenzie
lauriemackenzie59@gmail.com

Email Addresses:

brian.stokle@sfgov.org, boardofappeals@sfgov.org, engardiostaff@sfgov.org,
rclyde@sfbike.org, MelgarStaff@sfgov.org, NorthCentralCoast@coastal.ca.gov,
chanstaff@sfgov.org

From: Laura Stonehill
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; info@greathighwaypark.com; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great highway needs to stay a car-free park
Date: Wednesday, January 31, 2024 2:48:09 PM

---

Dear Commissioners,

Great highway is such a joyous place for my 7 year old and 3 year old to ride their bikes without cars. Please keep the weekend compromise and reject appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

Thank you,
Laura Stonehill

From: SF Public Works Great Highway Notification
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: Great Highway Open - 02-05-2024
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:06:36 AM

---

Please click here to acknowledge receipt of this message

The Great Highway is Open from Lincoln Way to Sloat Boulevard in the Northbound direction.

For more information call 311.

From: San Francisco Public Works

From: Sarah \(Egdal\) Hollenhorst
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway Permit
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 2:43:58 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Sarah Egdal Hollenhorst and I am a resident of the Sunset District in San Francisco.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

My children and I love going to the Great Highway on the weekends to run together so we can enjoy our beautiful coastline without the risk of being around cars. We have also practiced bicycling, roller skated, scootered, and played with friends on the Great Highway - now one of a very small number of long flat areas in San Francisco without cars. We have truly loved having this new open space added to our city!

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Regards,

Sarah Egdal Hollenhorst

--

Sarah (Egdal) Hollenhorst
415-999-9858

From: Harry
Subject: Great Highway pilot project
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:58:59 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Harry, and I am a resident of the Outer Sunset.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I use the Great Highway to walk with friends and family, and I like having it clear when I go to the beach.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

From: Mikayla Chang
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway pilot project
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 4:54:50 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Mikayla and I am a resident of Noe Valley.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

From: Krista Farey
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway Pilot
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 2:24:34 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Krista Farey and I am a resident of the inner Sunset / Golden Gate Heights.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I bike on the great highway at least twice a week, love it, and find it a much safer and superior experience on days when it is closed to cars.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Krista Farey, MD
626 Pacheco St.
San Francisco CA 94116

From: Will Dalton
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway Pilot
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:25:08 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Will Dalton and I am a resident of the Haight.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

The Great Highway has been wonderful and feels so much safer when car traffic isn't allowed.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals.

Thank you!

Will

From: Daniela Wehmeyer
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Cc: Asim Bhansali
Subject: Great Highway Proj
Date: Saturday, February 3, 2024 11:28:33 AM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Daniela Wehmeyer, and I am a resident of the outer Richmond

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

At a time when there is so much talk about the dooms loop in San Francisco, the beautiful outdoors is something that brings people together and makes them fall in love again with San Francisco. Places like Ocean Beach and the Great Highway, which I use recreationally for biking, are certainly one reason why I would not consider moving outside San Francisco. More importantly, as a fifth grade teacher, I hear from students how they and their families biked on the Great Highway on weekends and how much this meant to them. Especially after the pandemic when students spent too much time in front of screens, these social outdoor experiences like biking the Great Highway, that bring people together and celebrate our city in a way that is affordable to all, need to be celebrated and preserved.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Daniela Wehmeyer

From: Katherine Nielsen
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway Promenade
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 11:10:52 AM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Katherine Nielsen and I live in the Miraloma Park neighborhood in San Francisco. I am writing to urge you to uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

Just this past week, I rode my bike on the Great Highway promenade twice - Friday afternoon and Sunday mid-day. Whatever mood I am in when I start my bike ride, I am happy on the Great Highway. It's a beautiful spot and I love seeing people of all ages and backgrounds enjoying the space. Strollers, people with walkers, people in wheelchairs, on bikes, running, walking and more. It's such a wonderful way to bring our community together. And, for me personally, it results in a fantastic bike loop from my home, with much of it car-free: Great Highway then up through Golden Gate Park and then over Twin Peaks.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Katherine Nielsen
130 Los Palmos Drive
SF, CA 94127

From: Alfredo Vergara-Lobo
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: Great Highway request
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 11:42:57 AM

---

My name is Alfredo Vergara-Lobo and I am a resident of Sunnyside in D7.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I ride my bicycle on the Great Highway as often as I can and whenever cars are not present. As an exercise stretch of road, it is nearly impossible to find other stretches like it in our City, therefore, access to this area has a needed, positive impact on my health. I value my health and that of my fellow San Franciscans more than the convenience of greenhouse gas emitting drivers who can easily take multiple other routes to get to their destination.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you

Sent from my iPhone

From: Laurel Elkjer
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 8:57:23 AM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Laurel Elkjer and I am a resident of District 3.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I bike on the Great Highway regularly, and love seeing all of the people enjoying it on weekends.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Laurel Elkjer
745 Chestnut St
SF 94133

From: Nancy Casciani
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: Great Highway, San Francisco
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:49:40 PM

---

Reopen this major artery to cars! Our political leaders lied to us, they said these closed streets would be open when the pandemic was over, hypothetically the pandemic has been cleared, declared over. There's a path to walk on and a beach. The great human walkway has destroyed this environment and brought excessive levels of garbage not to mention speeding cars. Save the Sunset District.

It's interesting how many homes on the lower great highway still display signs reopen the Great Highway to cars! Save our covers from discussing this and wasting any more tax dollars on it get this road open, 24/7, 365.

Golden Gate Park is 50% closed to auto traffic. What more is there?

San Francisco native!

Foot Traffic has destroyed the fragile environment of ocean Beach dunes.

Please tell the cyclist to stop riding on the grass on JFK Drive. They're putting ruts in it. Damaging the fraudulent environment. Also they have the whole paved street to ride their bikes on. The selfishness of a handful continues!

Sent from my iPad

From: Chris Connolly
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:32:20 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Chris Connolly and I am a resident of Russian Hill.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

The Great Highway is a beautiful place that is best enjoyed without vehicles.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Chris

From: kenny kruse
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Cc: rclyde@sfbike.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:02:21 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,
My name is Kenny Kruse and I am a resident of the Castro.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I used to live next to the Great Highway and loved walking and taking our dog there. I still love to bike, walk, and run along the Great Highway; it is one of the treasures of our city.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

From: Brad Azevedo
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 4:03:14 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Brad Azevedo, a resident of Noe Valley.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I am a cyclist who regularly bikes a loop around the city and the Great Highway is an essential part of that connectivity. Car-free access has been a game-changer for cyclist and pedestrian access to the coast and it is so wonderful to see this formerly barren area alive with people on the weekends. This is an example of "if you build it, they will come" and I hope that you will preserve it.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Brad Azevedo

From: Abi Wilson
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:29:20 PM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Abi Wilson and I am a resident of Noe Valley.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

The community spirit of the GH on weekends is second to none, and brings joy and togetherness to this wonderful city's locals and tourists alike.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Abi Wilson

From: Lynne Howe
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: Great Highway
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:57:19 PM

---

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

Lynne Howe, D5 Voter
1515 Sutter Street #349

Sent from my iPhone

From: Aggie Zau
To: MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; brian.stokle@sfgov.org; chanstaff@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org
Subject: Great highway: coastal zone permit
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 11:53:41 AM

---

Hello Commissioners,

My name is Aggie Z and I am a resident of San Francisco.

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I love how the Great Highway connects Lake Merced to Golden Gate Park. Running along it, I see people smiling with their morning coffees and getting their exercise. Watching the waves and the surfers, I feel like the Great Highway provides a time of therapy and peace in the otherwise chaotic city life.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Aggie Zau
aggie.zau@gmail.com | 408.242.7312

From: Edward Wright
To: NorthCentralCoast@Coastal
Subject: I helped create the Great Walkway. Please keep it, and reject appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065
Date: Friday, February 2, 2024 6:04:12 PM

---

Honorable North Central Coast Coastal Commission,

The creation of the Great Walkway is one of the proudest accomplishments of my life. It's the reason I started biking again as an adult, it's where my guide daughter has taken some of her first steps, it's where countless kids have learned to ride bikes and experience their coastline safe from cars.

I am writing to ask that you uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and that you reject appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

As one of the thousands of San Franciscans who visit Great Highway Park every weekend to walk, roll, jog, bike, and simply enjoy the Pacific Ocean, the pilot program is crucial for my access to and enjoyment of the shoreline. This permit simply maintains the existing compromise approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in 2022 and furthers the objectives of the Coastal Act and San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan by enhancing recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and providing safe space for kids, seniors, and the entire community to benefit from the coast. Maintaining this pilot allows City agencies to collect data and perform community engagement to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

In addition, the permit authorizes important traffic calming in the Outer Sunset. This has greatly improved the safety of the neighborhood and are vital to my safety when I walk and bike to Ocean Beach and nearby businesses.

Edward Wright
edwardwrightmail@gmail.com

San Francisco, California 94103

From: Jack Eidson
To: brian.stokle@sfgov.org; boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; rclyde@sfbike.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org
Subject: I love the Great Highway Pilot Project
Date: Thursday, February 1, 2024 5:25:07 PM

---

Hi all,

I am writing in support of one of the BEST and least doom-loopy parts of San Francisco: the car-free Upper Great Highway!

Please uphold the Planning Commission's unanimous determination to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and please reject the appeals against it.

I love biking along the beach on the weekend, and supporting local small businesses like Andytown and Hook Fish. I would be less likely to support these Richmond and Sunset businesses without the car-free Upper Great Highway.

This permit is in alignment with the pilot approved by the Board of Supervisors and Mayor Breed in December 2022. This permit is also in alignment with San Francisco's Local Coastal Plan, the Ocean Beach Master Plan, Vision Zero plan and the Climate Action Plan.

The Great Highway pilot project improves safety and connectivity for people traveling with sustainable forms of transportation. The pilot project also enhances recreational use of the Ocean Beach shoreline and provides safe space for the entire community to recreate and get around. It is crucial to maintain this pilot so city agencies can collect data to help determine the long-term future of the Great Highway.

Again, please uphold the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway and reject the appeals. Thank you.

Jack

From: Gregory Robin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:53:32 AM

---

My name is Gregory Robin

My email address is gnrobin@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gregory Robin

From: Randal Bowers
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:10 PM

---

My name is Randal Bowers

My email address is handsomehippie@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Randal Bowers

From: Lauris Jensen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:02:36 PM

---

My name is Lauris Jensen

My email address is lauris.jensen@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lauris Jensen

From: Diane Fong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:26:28 AM

---

My name is Diane Fong

My email address is dlfong56@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Diane Fong

From: Katherine Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:31 PM

---

My name is Katherine Lee

My email address is shumdra@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Katherine Lee

From: Edward Mason
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:36:12 PM

---

My name is Edward Mason

My email address is zabredala3@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Edward Mason

From: Susan Wolff
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:32:37 PM

---

My name is Susan Wolff

My email address is sunrose7818@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Susan Wolff

From: Christins Pappas
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:05:06 PM

---

My name is Christins Pappas

My email address is scoutca66@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Christins Pappas

From: Carmen Woo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:29:27 AM

---

My name is Carmen Woo

My email address is carmenwoo68@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

PLEASE KEEP IT OP

Sincerely,
Carmen Woo

From: Connie Fitzgerald
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:13:39 PM

---

My name is Connie Fitzgerald

My email address is cfitzgerald1059@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Connie Fitzgerald

From: George Consagra
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:50 PM

---

My name is George Consagra

My email address is gconsagra@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
George Consagra

From: Jackie Svevo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:47 PM

---

My name is Jackie Svevo

My email address is jackiesvevo@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jackie Svevo

From: walter.schirra
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:16:46 PM

---

My name is walter schirra

My email address is potspotter@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
walter schirra

From: Bonnie Fimbres
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:32:52 AM

---

My name is Bonnie Fimbres

My email address is sfonurse@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Bonnie Fimbres

From: Albert Gao
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:26:51 PM

---

My name is Albert Gao

My email address is albertgao@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Albert Gao

From: Mae Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:21 PM

---

My name is Mae Lee

My email address is maeyoulee@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mae Lee

From: Madeleine Bass
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:00:56 AM

---

My name is Madeleine Bass

My email address is madsheldon1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Madeleine Bass

From: Jeff Karras
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:39 PM

---

My name is Jeff Karras

My email address is jeffkarras@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jeff Karras

From: Benjamin Ng
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:48:05 PM

---

My name is Benjamin Ng
My email address is beng8@me.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Benjamin Ng

From: Sean Owens
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:35 PM

---

My name is Sean Owens

My email address is sean.patrick.owens@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sean Owens

From: Jasmine Madatian
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:46:03 PM

---

My name is Jasmine Madatian

My email address is madatian.j@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jasmine Madatian

From: Birke Reimnitz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:21 PM

---

My name is Birke Reimnitz

My email address is birker@mindspring.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Birke Reimnitz

From: Ellen Maruoka
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:10 PM

---

My name is Ellen Maruoka

My email address is mikomaruoka@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ellen Maruoka

From: Phillip Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:01:51 AM

---

My name is Phillip Wong

My email address is philwongnobhillsf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Phillip Wong

From: matt.lopez
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:53:34 AM

---

My name is matt lopez

My email address is younglopez1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
matt lopez

From: Jolly Ann Ong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:32 PM

---

My name is Jolly Ann Ong

My email address is jollibee18@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jolly Ann Ong

From: Jerald Lowe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:05:03 PM

---

My name is Jerald Lowe

My email address is jeraldlowe88@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jerald Lowe

From: Mark Cervantes
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:36:21 PM

---

My name is Mark Cervantes

My email address is mcervantes5734@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mark Cervantes

From: Rose Lau
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:02:37 PM

---

My name is Rose Lau

My email address is jadoer7@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rose Lau

From: Judy Adami
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:32:23 PM

---

My name is Judy Adami

My email address is jrbadami@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Judy Adami

From: Christina Shih
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:49 PM

---

My name is Christina Shih

My email address is cyssf2003@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Christina Shih

From: Fred Molfino
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:38 PM

---

My name is Fred Molfino

My email address is molfinojr@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Fred Molfino

From: Charlotte Pope
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:32:51 AM

---

My name is Charlotte Pope

My email address is charlotte.w.pope@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Charlotte Pope

From: Puja Amin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:36 PM

---

My name is Puja Amin

My email address is puja.amin1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Puja Amin

From: Rodney Leong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:26:55 PM

---

My name is Rodney Leong

My email address is rleong@rocketmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rodney Leong

From: Will Noble
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:54 PM

---

My name is Will Noble

My email address is will@sfnoble.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Will Noble

From: Seth Gottlieb
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:26:30 AM

---

My name is Seth Gottlieb

My email address is gottlieb54@mac.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Seth Gottlieb

From: Donna Ames-Heldfond
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:47:41 PM

---

My name is Donna Ames-Heldfond

My email address is donna@donnaames.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Donna Ames-Heldfond

From: Barbara Sokol
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:17:46 PM

---

My name is Barbara Sokol

My email address is bsoky@pacbell.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Barbara Sokol

From: Greg Holmes
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:24:19 PM

---

My name is Greg Holmes

My email address is ghinsf@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Greg Holmes

From: Dan Ake
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:46:02 PM

---

My name is Dan Ake

My email address is danake550@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dan Ake

From: Alexander Karpovich
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:29:26 AM

---

My name is Alexander Karpovich

My email address is imalexk@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alexander Karpovich

From: Margot Beall
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:37 PM

---

My name is Margot Beall

My email address is margotbeall@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Margot Beall

From: Rosanne Liggett
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:48 PM

---

My name is Rosanne Liggett

My email address is rosanneadana@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rosanne Liggett

From: Glenn Schot
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:59:15 AM

---

My name is Glenn Schot

My email address is gschot@me.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Glenn Schot

From: Alan Gregory
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:19 PM

---

My name is Alan Gregory

My email address is amg2500@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alan Gregory

From: Daniel Choi
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:26:58 PM

---

My name is Daniel Choi

My email address is daniel.choi@kp.org

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Daniel Choi

From: Stephanie Peek
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:17:46 PM

---

My name is Stephanie Peek

My email address is stephanie@stephaniepeek.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Peek

From: Margaret Schulze
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:41 PM

---

My name is Margaret Schulze

My email address is margaretschulze@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Margaret Schulze

From: Mary Irwin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:29:43 PM

---

My name is Mary Irwin

My email address is marylandersirwin@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mary Irwin

From: EBERT KAN
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:30:14 PM

---

My name is EBERT KAN

My email address is Nomad627@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
EBERT KAN

From: SAMUEL KWONG
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:29:06 PM

---

My name is SAMUEL KWONG

My email address is misterarcus@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
SAMUEL KWONG

From: Maryanne Razzo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:34:46 AM

---

My name is Maryanne Razzo

My email address is maryannevrazzo@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Maryanne Razzo

From: Lori Murakami
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:37 PM

---

My name is Lori Murakami

My email address is lmurakami@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lori Murakami

From: Connie Tang
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:46:50 PM

---

My name is Connie Tang

My email address is dr.fowler@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Connie Tang

From: Monica Dowell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:08 PM

---

My name is Monica Dowell

My email address is monicadowell@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Monica Dowell

From: Kendra McLaughlin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:03:25 PM

---

My name is Kendra McLaughlin

My email address is kendramcl@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kendra McLaughlin

From: Arthur Hubbard
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:05:02 PM

---

My name is Arthur Hubbard

My email address is amhsf@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Arthur Hubbard

From: Brian Carr
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:26:19 AM

---

My name is Brian Carr

My email address is bpcarr@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian Carr

From: Jessica Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:59 PM

---

My name is Jessica Wong

My email address is JessicaG.Wong@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jessica Wong

From: Katherine Wolf
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:36:23 PM

---

My name is Katherine Wolf

My email address is kwolf@siprep.org

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Katherine Wolf

From: Alex Karpovich
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:29:25 AM

---

My name is Alex Karpovich

My email address is akarpovich@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alex Karpovich

From: Diane Janakes-Zasada
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:07:31 AM

---

My name is Diane Janakes-Zasada

My email address is djanakes@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Diane Janakes-Zasada

From: Kathryn Bates
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:52 PM

---

My name is Kathryn Bates

My email address is kathrynbates@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathryn Bates

From: Madhuri Vivit
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:25:15 AM

---

My name is Madhuri Vivit

My email address is madhurivivit@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Madhuri Vivit

From: Tom Smith
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:26:58 PM

---

My name is Tom Smith

My email address is tomsmith1330@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Tom Smith

From: Misti Reif
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:59:17 AM

---

My name is Misti Reif

My email address is misti@mistilayne.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Misti Reif

From: Sean McGrew
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:03:36 PM

---

My name is Sean McGrew

My email address is ynsurf@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sean McGrew

From: Marc Larby
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:05:00 PM

---

My name is Marc Larby

My email address is marc.larby@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marc Larby

From: tony.winogrocki
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:40 PM

---

My name is tony winogrocki

My email address is tonywinogrocki@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
tony winogrocki

From: Patrick Ryan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:36 PM

---

My name is Patrick Ryan

My email address is pgryan209@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Patrick Ryan

From: Michael Brandon
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:47 PM

---

My name is Michael Brandon

My email address is michael@sfvideo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Brandon

From: James Mazza
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:46:48 PM

---

My name is James Mazza

My email address is jmazza@gmail.com

I live on 48th Ave can attest to the traffic complications and safety issues that have arisen from this poorly planned “park.” I have 2 small children and feel unsafe on my street (1200 block of 48th Ave) when the Great Hwy is closed to vehicular traffic. I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
James Mazza

From: Janet Goodson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:28:17 PM

---

My name is Janet Goodson

My email address is whgjgg@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Janet Goodson

From: Ignacio Orellana-Garcia
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:19 PM

---

My name is Ignacio Orellana-Garcia

My email address is Volare232@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ignacio Orellana-Garcia

From: Connie Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:09:05 PM

---

My name is Connie Wong

My email address is conniepang1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Connie Wong

From: Sergio Duarte
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:08 PM

---

My name is Sergio Duarte

My email address is malagueta127@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sergio Duarte

From: Richard Chui
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:56:03 AM

---

My name is Richard Chui

My email address is richard.chui@outlook.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Richard Chui

From: Trudy May
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:45:04 PM

---

My name is Trudy May

My email address is may@usfca.edu

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

I strongly feel that there is ample walkway and bicycle access, plus vast recreational space on the beach to negate the need for additional space on a roadway. It's a reliable, convenient thoroughfare for vehicles alleviating excess traffic on residential side streets. Stop making streets into parks.

Sincerely,
Trudy May

From: Sher Bijan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:59 PM

---

My name is Sher Bijan

My email address is s.bijan@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Thank you in advance.

Sincerely,
Sher Bijan

From: Barbara Duncan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:24:37 AM

---

My name is Barbara Duncan

My email address is bdwld@msn.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Barbara Duncan

From: Kathy Regan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:17:48 PM

---

My name is Kathy Regan

My email address is meemom@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathy Regan

From: Don Emmons
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:29:14 PM

---

My name is Don Emmons

My email address is emmo55@me.com

I used to use the great highway for business and recreational purposes. It has been a great inconvenience and time waster for me since it has been closed. The pilot program is a mistake in my opinion, and should be shut down permanently. This road is very essential for vehicular Traffic especially including emergency traffic. I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Don Emmons

From: Madeleine Bass
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:08:50 AM

---

My name is Madeleine Bass

My email address is madsheldon1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Madeleine Bass

From: David Alexander
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:50:40 PM

---

My name is David Alexander

My email address is friscoloco@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Alexander

From: Dorothea Kaz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:56:04 AM

---

My name is Dorothea Kaz

My email address is dorotheakaz@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dorothea Kaz

From: Heather Leonard
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:00:13 AM

---

My name is Heather Leonard

My email address is indigo415@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Heather Leonard

From: Richard Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:35 PM

---

My name is Richard Lee

My email address is glock226@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Richard Lee

From: Brian Holt
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:47 PM

---

My name is Brian Holt

My email address is bah1943@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian Holt

From: Lex Tyndall
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:17:28 AM

---

My name is Lex Tyndall

My email address is lextyndall@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lex Tyndall

From: Craig Hyde
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:46:37 PM

---

My name is Craig Hyde

My email address is craighydesf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Craig Hyde

From: Elizabeth Clark
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:20:02 AM

---

My name is Elizabeth Clark

My email address is swimeclark@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Clark

From: Edward Reilly
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:29:28 PM

---

My name is Edward Reilly

My email address is jreilly749@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Edward Reilly

From: Jack Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:09:06 PM

---

My name is Jack Wong

My email address is Jjwb1@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jack Wong

From: Kathy Crabe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:05:00 PM

---

My name is Kathy Crabe

My email address is tallyhoagogo@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathy Crabe

From: Rita O'Hara
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:42 PM

---

My name is Rita O'Hara

My email address is tidi58@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rita O'Hara

From: Shelly Horton
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:19:59 PM

---

My name is Shelly Horton

My email address is shellyhorton@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Shelly Horton

From: Kyle Donohoe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:12:12 PM

---

My name is Kyle Donohoe

My email address is why.you.do.that@outlook.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kyle Donohoe

From: Stephanie Holbrook
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:17 PM

---

My name is Stephanie Holbrook

My email address is fifiholbrook@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Holbrook

From: Teresa Shaw
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:29:41 PM

---

My name is Teresa Shaw

My email address is tawny.sapient0c@icloud.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Teresa Shaw

From: Amy Nachman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:07 PM

---

My name is Amy Nachman

My email address is stretchmccovey@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Amy Nachman

From: Michael Gehlken
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:59 PM

---

My name is Michael Gehlken

My email address is cabrito@sonic.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Gehlken

From: Melanie Sworyda
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:23:41 AM

---

My name is Melanie Sworyda

My email address is Cistusrock28@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

The rude and self absorbed bike riders make crossing the Great Highway more dangerous and nerve racking than cars, motorcycles and any other vehicle needing a licence. The rude and pushy bike riders have invaded the calm and sensitive areas near the beach. MANY people drive their cars with their bikes to invade this neighborhood when there are bike paths in Golden Gate Park and many other parks. The Great Highway is not a park with interesting plants and birds. The stupidest walk their dogs on the Great Highway which can most definitely hurt their paws in extreme weather. The rude bike riders come much too close to people crossing the road to go to the beach. The city has not done anything about the enormous amount of trash left at the Great Highway after being closed. Do not lie. There are insufficient trash receptacles. This issue has absolutely not been addressed and this little note shows something that is extremely obvious. Fixing this problem years later just shows the lack of care this government has. Yes, with all the false statements about needing housing in this neighborhood the government has chosen this neighborhood as a dumping ground for false benefits to the residents. Closing the Great Highway and adding speed bumps further makes people living in this neighborhood shop elsewhere, where parking is free and easy to obtain. The great majority of the people living in San Francisco do not ride a bike. Electric bikes go much too fast to need to use this road. The road is taxpayer supported and everyone should be able to use it,not just people entertaining themselves. There is a pathway next to the Great Highway that is used for walking and biking.

Sincerely,
Melanie Sworyda

From: Perrin Belway
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:36 PM

---

My name is Perrin Belway

My email address is pbelway@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Perrin Belway

From: Brian Madigan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:58 PM

---

My name is Brian Madigan

My email address is bmadigan@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian Madigam

From: Sheila lorraine O'Neill-Bosch
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:00:17 AM

---

My name is Sheila lorraine O'Neill-Bosch

My email address is darcy74@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sheila lorraine O'Neill-Bosch

From: Joyce True
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:09:06 PM

---

My name is Joyce True

My email address is jetnurse@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Joyce True

From: Shannon Hughes
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:03:03 PM

---

My name is Shannon Hughes

My email address is realslb2@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Shannon Hughes

From: Louis Green
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:14 PM

---

My name is Louis Green

My email address is louishgreen@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Louis Green

From: Stanton Brunner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:43 PM

---

My name is Stanton Brunner

My email address is todoquees@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stanton Brunner

From: John Kollins
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:46:25 PM

---

My name is John Kollins

My email address is kollinsacct2@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Kollins

From: Mike Regan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:06 PM

---

My name is Mike Regan

My email address is myoldgoat@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mike Regan

From: Keith Kandarian
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:36:32 PM

---

My name is Keith Kandarian

My email address is tawny.sapient0c@icloud.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Keith Kandarian

From: Bruce Huston
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:19:38 AM

---

My name is Bruce Huston

My email address is hustonbj@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Bruce Huston

From: June Kitagawa
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal:chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:19:31 AM

---

My name is June Kitagawa

My email address is june.kitagawa@yahoo.com

As a native San Francisco who is finding it harder and harder to stay in love with SF with all of the insane, family-unfriendly street changes that the City is implementing, I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

Please return the Great Highway to normal vehicular traffic. The SF Bike Coalition clearly doesn't care about families and people who just cannot ride bikes to get on with their daily needs. If you want families to remain in the City, this kind of nonsense has to stop.

Thank you,
June

Sincerely,
June Kitagawa

From: Mandy Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:58:17 AM

---

My name is Mandy Lee

My email address is icopath@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mandy Lee

From: Wayne Duncan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:23:41 AM

---

My name is Wayne Duncan

My email address is bdwld@msn.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Wayne Duncan

From: ANNA M BOCKRIS
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:45 PM

---

My name is ANNA M BOCKRIS

My email address is ABOCKRIS@GMAIL.COM

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
ANNA M BOCKRIS

From: Marvin Rose
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:29:46 PM

---

My name is Marvin Rose

My email address is rosema41@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marvin Rose

From: Mari Eliza
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:18:54 PM

---

My name is Mari Eliza

My email address is zrants@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mari Eliza

From: Gabriella Iannaccone
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal;
chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:37 PM

---

My name is Gabriella Iannaccone

My email address is gaiannaccone@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gabriella Iannaccone

From: Whitney Gough
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:35 PM

---

My name is Whitney Gough

My email address is whitneymgough@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Whitney Gough

From: T Louie
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:22:18 PM

---

My name is T Louie

My email address is tlouie@earthlink.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
T Louie

From: Scott Ashkenaz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:04:55 PM

---

My name is Scott Ashkenaz

My email address is smashkenaz@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Scott Ashkenaz

From: J Leung
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:57:06 PM

---

My name is J Leung

My email address is jleung23@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
J Leung

From: John Tostanoski
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:55 PM

---

My name is John Tostanoski

My email address is sfskee1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Tostanoski

From: Dave Dolby
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:34 PM

---

My name is Dave Dolby

My email address is dave@dolbyventures.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dave Dolby

From: Linda Mathews
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:05 PM

---

My name is Linda Mathews

My email address is linda.mathews@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Linda Mathews

From: Ron Karpowicz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:03:06 AM

---

My name is Ron Karpowicz

My email address is ronaldkarpowicz@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ron Karpowicz

From: Gregory Bailey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:19:31 AM

---

My name is Gregory Bailey

My email address is 5150seller@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gregory Bailey

From: Matthew C. Sheridan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:53 PM

---

My name is Matthew C Sheridan

My email address is matthew@sheridan.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Please don't box the Richmond District in. We are working families that need to have access to our jobs. Don't be naive, as if we don't drive cars. Kids go soccer practice, moms work. Access for all.

Sincerely,
Matthew C Sheridan

From: Denise Atchley
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:33:34 PM

---

My name is Denise Atchley

My email address is denise_atchley@yahoo.com

It is unfair to people with limited mobility, to restrict access to the ocean, to those on foot or bike only.

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Denise Atchley

From: Grant Ingram
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:03:35 PM

---

My name is Grant Ingram

My email address is grant.ingram@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Grant Ingram

From: Jo Huerta
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:45 PM

---

My name is Jo Huerta

My email address is diamonddozen@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jo Huerta

From: Nancy Bronstein
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:19:37 AM

---

My name is Nancy Bronstein

My email address is nstirm@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nancy Bronstein

From: Durinda Coursey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:42:07 PM

---

My name is Durinda Coursey

My email address is dnb001@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Durinda Coursey

From: Gayle Mishima
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:13:24 PM

---

My name is Gayle Mishima

My email address is gmishima@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gayle Mishima

From: George Herrera
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:54 PM

---

My name is George Herrera

My email address is gaherrera11@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
George Herrera

From: Damian Inglin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:44 PM

---

My name is Damian Inglin

My email address is damianinglin@icloud.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Damian Inglin

From: David Cantu
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:37:41 PM

---

My name is David Cantu

My email address is david_cantu@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Cantu

From: Lorri Ungaretti
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:14 PM

---

My name is Lorri Ungaretti

My email address is lorrisf@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lorri Ungaretti

From: Alison Fong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:38 PM

---

My name is Alison Fong

My email address is ayfong1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alison Fong

From: Laurel Winzler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 12:57:16 PM

---

My name is Laurel Winzler

My email address is flaurel1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Laurel Winzler

From: Don Climent
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:04:55 PM

---

My name is Don Climent

My email address is donc4496@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Don Climent

From: Annie Bai
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:19:39 AM

---

My name is Annie Bai

My email address is caibaisf123@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Annie Bai

From: Kimberly Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:10:10 PM

---

My name is Kimberly Wong

My email address is Kimberlyw951@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kimberly Wong

From: J X
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:04:42 AM

---

My name is J X

My email address is happyjx1@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
J X

From: Cora Wrockloff
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:19:00 PM

---

My name is Cora Wrockloff

My email address is mswrock@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Cora Wrockloff

From: Candyce Martin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:40:37 AM

---

My name is Candyce Martin

My email address is Crossways@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Candyce Martin

From: Richard Worner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:48 PM

---

My name is Richard Worner

My email address is richworner@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Richard Worner

From: Shari Videlock
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:03:07 AM

---

My name is Shari Videlock

My email address is shari@osbert.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Shari Videlock

From: Jackson Murphy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:19:08 AM

---

My name is Jackson Murphy

My email address is jackspop2@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jackson Murphy

From: Josephine Zhao
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:11:35 PM

---

My name is Josephine Zhao

My email address is josephine_zhao@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Josephine Zhao

From: Evelyn Graham
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:13 PM

---

My name is Evelyn Graham

My email address is evelynG@openwaterfront.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Evelyn Graham

From: Antonia Cohen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:53 PM

---

My name is Antonia Cohen

My email address is antoniahcohen@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Antonia Cohen

From: Kim Russo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:15:18 AM

---

My name is Kim Russo

My email address is Ckar101@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kim Russo

From: Boris Zutner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:44 PM

---

My name is Boris Zutner

My email address is borzut2010@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Boris Zutner

From: Robin Gray
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:51 PM

---

My name is Robin Gray

My email address is robingray@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Robin Gray

From: Dino Borjal
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:05 PM

---

My name is Dino Borjal

My email address is djborjal@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dino Borjal

From: Ed Tavasieff
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:55:32 PM

---

My name is Ed Tavasieff

My email address is edso_fish@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ed Tavasieff

From: Charlene Karma
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:32 PM

---

My name is Charlene Karma

My email address is charrawrz@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Charlene Karma

From: Jenna Kaiser
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:39 PM

---

My name is Jenna Kaiser

My email address is jennakaiserw@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jenna Kaiser

From: William Nicholas
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:18:19 AM

---

My name is William Nicholas

My email address is woolfdn@outlook.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
William Nicholas

From: Mallory Anderson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:04:54 PM

---

My name is Mallory Anderson

My email address is mallymay25@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mallory Anderson

From: Robi Roorda
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:08:37 PM

---

My name is Robi Roorda

My email address is robihns@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Robi Roorda

From: Daniel Lau
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:03:25 PM

---

My name is Daniel Lau

My email address is dan.lau@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Daniel Lau

From: Soledad Alzaga
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:33:58 PM

---

My name is Soledad Alzaga

My email address is soledadalzaga@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Soledad Alzaga

From: Scott Gutterman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:03:40 PM

---

My name is Scott Gutterman

My email address is guttermanscott@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Scott Gutterman

From: Christopher Mei
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:41 PM

---

My name is Christopher Mei

My email address is cmei722@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

I have other reasons to keep the Great Highway Open to motor vehicles and not turn it into a walkway.

Summary of main points in support of keeping the Great Highway open to motorists:

Military Veterans will benefit.

Not a racetrack.

Temporary closure because of Covid was acceptable, permanent is not.

Other nearby options for outdoor exercise.

It is safe for pedestrians.

It serves people from the Peninsula.

Closure primarily for maintenance.

No carnivals.

Discussion of main points:

One of the points will be that the Upper Great Highway between Lincoln Way and Sloat Boulevard ("The Roadway") benefits the MILITARY VETERANS who take a shuttle to the VA Hospital on Clement Street. When the Roadway was closed to motor vehicles shortly after Covid began, I observed the VA hospital's shuttle traveling on the lower great highway, hitting every speed hump. Can you imagine how the passengers, the military veterans, must feel, physically and emotionally? Many of them are in pain, and repetitive stopping and starting aggravates their pain. I believe many of them would appreciate a smooth calm ride on the Roadway. From an emotional standpoint, I believe many of them resent the Roadway being closed.

Permanent closure means using 19th Avenue or Sunset Boulevard as main North-South routes; both of them are a grind and they are racetracks. THE ROADWAY IS NOT A RACETRACK.

At the beginning of the Covid outbreak, the Roadway was closed to motor vehicles so citizens could have more access to fresh air and additional space to get exercise. That was fine as a temporary measure; but to close it permanently is poor judgment because we have Golden Gate Park very accessible to the neighborhood residents and a two-mile stretch of beachfront for getting fresh air and exercise, with plenty of social distancing. The thought of leaving the Roadway closed permanently is ludicrous. It also makes a bit of a laughing stock of San Francisco to shut down an efficient North-South route in order to all citizens to have access to more outdoor space, PARTICULARLY WITH THE PROXIMITY OF GOLDEN GATE PARK AND THE BEACH ITSELF.

HAD COVID NOT OCCURRED THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN NO CONSIDERATION OF A PERMANENT CLOSURE OF THE ROADWAY FOR MOTOR VEHICLES.

The concept that San Franciscans from all neighborhoods will be flocking to the closed Roadway is weak and unrealistic. People living in Russian Hill or The Mission may avail themselves of the closed Roadway a handful of times but not on a regular basis. And the idea of providing food trucks and coffee carts, and having vendors selling their arts and crafts. LET'S NOT TRANSFORM A PRACTICAL, SAFE ROADWAY INTO A CARNIVAL.

There is virtually nobody on the closed Roadway during cold or inclement weather.

In defense of motorists, bear in mind that most drivers take advantage of the synchronized traffic signals and can drive from Sloat Boulevard to Lincoln Way nonstop, safely and without speeding.

There is NO DANGER TO PEDESTRIANS WHO want to walk across the Roadway because there are traffic signals and crosswalks every two blocks. The drivers stop at the red lights.

The Upper Great Highway SHOULD BE CLOSED ONLY FOR MAINTENANCE SUCH as sand removal and vegetation control. Closure for special occasions such as an art or music festival, should occur only once or twice a year.

Closure of the east end JFK Drive near the DeYoung leaves plenty of room for festivals and car-free activities. San Francisco cannot have everything.

PLEASE LEAVE THE UPPER GREAT HIGHWAY OPEN TO MOTORISTS 24/7/365.

My experiences as a bicyclist on the Upper Great Highway have always been safe. I bicycle on the shoulder twice a week. I feel safe. Motorists are aware of me and other cyclists. Sometimes the shoulder is covered with sand which is too deep to ride through; so I look behind me to see if cars are approaching. If not, I ride into the traffic lane and pass the sand. If cars are approaching from behind, then I use common sense and I stop. I wait for them to pass before riding into the traffic lane.

I think turning the Upper GH into a "promenade" is a joke, a terrible and selfish idea, and it makes me want to ask, "where are the adults in the room?"

Christopher Mei

Sincerely,
Christopher Mei

From: Zhanna Losik
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:30:05 PM

---

My name is Zhanna Losik

My email address is zhanna_losik@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Zhanna Losik

From: Cynthia Cawthon
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:13 PM

---

My name is Cynthia Cawthon

My email address is cawthon.cynthia.b@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Cawthon

From: Diane Broner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:18:18 AM

---

My name is Diane Broner

My email address is woolfdn@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Diane Broner

From: Astrid Crabbe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:04:53 PM

---

My name is Astrid Crabbe

My email address is heyastrid@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Astrid Crabbe

From: Michael Cohen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:52 PM

---

My name is Michael Cohen

My email address is michael.cohensfo@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Cohen

From: Angela Tickler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:45:17 PM

---

My name is Angela Tickler

My email address is angela.tickler@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Angela Tickler

From: WILLIAM PENDERGAST
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:03 PM

---

My name is WILLIAM PENDERGAST

My email address is WDPENDERGAST@YAHOO.COM

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM PENDERGAST

From: Liyao Zhu
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:49 PM

---

My name is Liyao Zhu

My email address is chamzhu@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Liyao Zhu

From: Gregory Vernitsky
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:08:18 PM

---

My name is Gregory Vernitsky

My email address is gregory.vernitsky@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gregory Vernitsky

From: Helen Katzenmeyer
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:40:38 AM

---

My name is Helen Katzenmeyer

My email address is hdk333@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Helen Katzenmeyer

From: Sharon Wu
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:50 PM

---

My name is Sharon Wu

My email address is travel143@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sharon Wu

From: Susan CroninParano
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:13:18 AM

---

My name is Susan CroninParano

My email address is susieparano@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Susan CroninParano

From: Jo Ann Shain
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:44 PM

---

My name is Jo Ann Shain

My email address is jwshain@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jo Ann Shain

From: Harry Cohen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:18:24 AM

---

My name is Harry Cohen

My email address is hmcohengolf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Harry Cohen

From: Brian McNamee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:27:23 AM

---

My name is Brian McNamee

My email address is frombriansipad@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian McNamee

From: Sarah Bacon
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:30 PM

---

My name is Sarah Bacon

My email address is sbacon1999@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sarah Bacon

From: Yat Chiu
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:55:33 PM

---

My name is Yat Chiu

My email address is sf2133@outlook.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Yat Chiu

From: Dorothy Wang
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:16:39 PM

---

My name is Dorothy Wang

My email address is dorothyw@sonic.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dorothy Wang

From: Brenda Johnson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:03:57 PM

---

My name is Brenda Johnson

My email address is brendaajohnson@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brenda Johnson

From: Peter McCoy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:18:20 PM

---

My name is Peter McCoy

My email address is peter.mccoy@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Peter McCoy

From: Edward Kaplun
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:07:31 PM

---

My name is Edward Kaplun

My email address is eddie30013@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Edward Kaplun

From: Greg Tarr
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:51 PM

---

My name is Greg Tarr

My email address is gtarr@crosspacificcapital.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Greg Tarr

From: Ward Smith
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:55:36 PM

---

My name is Ward Smith

My email address is wardsmith2004@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ward Smith

From: betty.winholtz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:43 PM

---

My name is betty winholtz

My email address is winholtz@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
betty winholtz

From: JACKLYN HANRATTY
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 1:57:18 PM

---

My name is JACKLYN HANRATTY
My email address is STROSE66@AOL.COM

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
JACKLYN HANRATTY

From: Carol Faulkner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:16:40 PM

---

My name is Carol Faulkner

My email address is cmoelarrycarol@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carol Faulkner

From: John Beshears
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:43 PM

---

My name is John Beshears

My email address is jlbeshears@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Beshears

From: joseph dowler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:05:30 AM

---

My name is joseph dowler

My email address is jspdwler@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
joseph dowler

From: kevin Oreilly
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 9:41:37 AM

---

My name is kevin Oreilly

My email address is cavan102@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
kevin Oreilly

From: Charles Thieriot
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:24:42 PM

---

My name is Charles Thieriot

My email address is charlesthieriot@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Charles Thieriot

From: David BSs
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:19:40 AM

---

My name is David BSs

My email address is davidbasssf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David BSs

From: Theo Honniball
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:54 PM

---

My name is Theo Honniball

My email address is 415cinema@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Theo Honniball

From: Chit Kwong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:27:23 AM

---

My name is Chit Kwong

My email address is chitkwong@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Chit Kwong

From: Ann Kutner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:12 PM

---

My name is Ann Kutner

My email address is annkutner@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ann Kutner

From: Norman Kondy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:18:24 AM

---

My name is Norman Kondy

My email address is nkondy@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Norman Kondy

From: Meredyth Masterson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:49 PM

---

My name is Meredyth Masterson

My email address is meredyth.masterson@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

-Meredyth

Sincerely,
Meredyth Masterson

From: Nancy Zerner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:38:04 PM

---

My name is Nancy Zerner

My email address is nancyfancypants@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nancy Zerner

From: Karen Puechner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:06:25 PM

---

My name is Karen Puechner

My email address is Knuther99@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Karen Puechner

From: Jared Alexander
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:55:33 PM

---

My name is Jared Alexander

My email address is vgsc@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jared Alexander

From: Ken Lowe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:02 PM

---

My name is Ken Lowe

My email address is klowr1234@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ken Lowe

From: Rebecca Schweitzer
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:28 PM

---

My name is Rebecca Schweitzer

My email address is rebeccamschweitzer@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Schweitzer

From: William Wreden
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:07:24 PM

---

My name is William Wreden

My email address is w.wreden@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
William Wreden

From: Alan Hannan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:50 PM

---

My name is Alan Hannan

My email address is alan@mindvision.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alan Hannan

From: Stephanie Lehman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:02 PM

---

My name is Stephanie Lehman

My email address is slehman21@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Lehman

From: Mario Mendoza
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:10:12 AM

---

My name is Mario Mendoza

My email address is mario.mendoza@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mario Mendoza

From: Julie Ortiz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:41 PM

---

My name is Julie Ortiz

My email address is amberjul@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Julie Ortiz

From: Ralph Chapin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:19:44 AM

---

My name is Ralph Chapin

My email address is ralphchapin@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ralph Chapin

From: Janet Kung
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 1:57:20 PM

---

My name is Janet Kung

My email address is jrmkung@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Janet Kung

From: Harry Hunt
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:27 PM

---

My name is Harry Hunt

My email address is huntharry@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Harry Hunt

From: Clyde Nichol
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:12 PM

---

My name is Clyde Nichol

My email address is holzregal@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Clyde Nichol

From: William Walker
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:24:43 PM

---

My name is William Walker

My email address is wlk4willi@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
William Walker

From: Insel Mainau
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:12:24 PM

---

My name is Insel Mainau

My email address is inselmainau2000@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Insel Mainau

From: Michael Bonnette
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:28:49 PM

---

My name is Michael Bonnette

My email address is me@bugmenot.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Bonnette

From: Hanley Lau
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:14 PM

---

My name is Hanley Lau

My email address is law.roz38@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Hanley Lau

From: Fred Muhlheim`
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:55:36 PM

---

My name is Fred Muhlheim`

My email address is fmuhlheim@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Fred Muhlheim`

From: Edward Poole
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:29:23 AM

---

My name is Edward Poole

My email address is egpoole60@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Edward Poole

From: Georgina Costales
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:50 PM

---

My name is Georgina Costales

My email address is gcostales@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Georgina Costales

From: Clyde Nichols
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 10:02:30 AM

---

My name is Clyde Nichols

My email address is holzregal@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Clyde Nichols

From: LaVive Kiely
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:26:20 PM

---

My name is LaVive Kiely

My email address is kielykids@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
LaVive Kiely

From: Joshua Seare
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:05:14 AM

---

My name is Joshua Seare

My email address is demonchef65@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Joshua Seare

From: Neal Powers
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:48 PM

---

My name is Neal Powers

My email address is nipowerssf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Neal Powers

From: James Hanratty
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:55 PM

---

My name is James Hanratty

My email address is hanrattyj49@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
James Hanratty

From: Marc Tuttle
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:07:01 PM

---

My name is Marc Tuttle

My email address is marctuttle@sonic.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marc Tuttle

From: Sara Kiehn
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:48 PM

---

My name is Sara Kiehn

My email address is sara@kiehn.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sara Kiehn

From: Tris Thomson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:26:22 PM

---

My name is Tris Thomson

My email address is tris.thomson@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Tris Thomson

From: Dianne Dienstein
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:41 PM

---

My name is Dianne Dienstein

My email address is ddienstein@gmail.com

Please overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

I am 78 and have lived at the corner of Fulton and the Great Highway for 33 years and its closure has greatly negatively impacted my life as I believe it has not only for San Franciscans but also everyone from the Peninsula or other parts of the Bay Area who might otherwise come to spend money at San Francisco restaurants and businesses, visit friends or relatives, and enjoy Golden Gate Park and the myriad of parks we already have without needing to create the GH as a park.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dianne Dienstein

From: Nora Murphy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:29:52 AM

---

My name is Nora Murphy

My email address is noramurphy@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nora Murphy

From: Mario Tarantino
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:29:08 PM

---

My name is Mario Tarantino

My email address is matarantino.mt@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mario Tarantino

From: Susan Flynn-Lopez
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:50 PM

---

My name is Susan Flynn-Lopez

My email address is zuzuflylo@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Susan Flynn-Lopez

From: Christine Hanson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:04:13 AM

---

My name is Christine Hanson

My email address is chrissibhanson@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

As someone who commutes from the Southern portion of the City to go to Marin every day I have witnessed a true mess being created on our roads. IT IS ACTUALLY NOW FASTER TO DRIVE TO OAKLAND AND CROSS THE RICHMOND BRIDGE THAN IT IS TO SIMPLY DRIVE ACROSS TOWN.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit. Allowing SF Park and Rec to do that sets a short sighted dictatorial precedent in City governance.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment. SNOWY PLOVER CHICKS ARE EXTREMELY VULNERABLE TO BEING TRAMPLED AND DO NOT HAVE THE CAPACITY TO FLEE.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike. HOW IS THIS ALLOWED TO CONTINUE AND NOW FLOURISH?

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions. IF THIS PERMIT IS ALLOWED TO STAND THERE MUST BE AIR QUALITY MONITORING SYSTEMS ON 19th AVENUE.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Christine Hanson

From: Marina Klochkov
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:02:36 AM

---

My name is Marina Klochkov

My email address is marinaklochkov@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marina Klochkov

From: Tom Hope
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:26 PM

---

My name is Tom Hope

My email address is tomhope@stanfordalumni.org

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Tom Hope

From: max.kellenberger@sfgov.org
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:29:06 PM

---

My name is max kellenberger

My email address is makephot@pacbell.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
max kellenberger

From: Marie Calendar
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:12:25 PM

---

My name is Marie Calendar

My email address is mariecalendar2000@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marie Calendar

From: Michael Cohen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:49 PM

---

My name is Michael Cohen

My email address is michael.cohen@venovate.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Cohen

From: Melba Jamie O'Keefe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:19:44 AM

---

My name is Melba Jamie O'Keefe

My email address is jokeefe415@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

For someone like me who has to commute, with no good access to public transportation, this has been a nightmare scenario.

Sincerely,
Melba Jamie O'Keefe

From: Suzanne Schimaneck
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 2:57:26 PM

---

My name is Suzanne Schimaneck

My email address is s.mce.schim@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Suzanne Schimaneck

From: Patricia Wise
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 10:03:15 AM

---

My name is Patricia Wise

My email address is pawise52@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Patricia Wise

From: michael perry
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:10:03 AM

---

My name is michael perry

My email address is mperrysfo@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
michael perry

From: Marc Brenman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:02 PM

---

My name is Marc Brenman

My email address is mbrenman001@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marc Brenman

From: Michael Cohen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:12 PM

---

My name is Michael Cohen

My email address is michael@apertureventures.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Cohen

From: Matt Kelly
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:16 PM

---

My name is Matt Kelly

My email address is thew_kelly@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Matt Kelly

From: Christy Chen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:57 PM

---

My name is Christy Chen

My email address is christykao111@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Christy Chen

From: Barbara Richard
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:06:52 PM

---

My name is Barbara Richard

My email address is barichard2008@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Barbara Richard

From: Monika Hunt
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:24 PM

---

My name is Monika Hunt

My email address is huntmonika@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Monika Hunt

From: kenneth.sarocky
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:41 PM

---

My name is kenneth sarocky

My email address is sarocky@mac.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
kenneth sarocky

From: Leslie Boin Podell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:02:36 AM

---

My name is Leslie Boin Podell

My email address is leslie@podell.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Leslie Boin Podell

From: Craig Epstein
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:29:08 PM

---

My name is Craig Epstein

My email address is craigepsteinproperties@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Craig Epstein

From: Isara Rodechanaphairatana
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:17 PM

---

My name is Isara Rodechanaphairatana

My email address is isararod@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Isara Rodechanaphairatana

From: kaaren.alvarado
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 7:00:42 AM

---

My name is kaaren alvarado

My email address is kaaren25@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
kaaren alvarado

From: George von Liphart
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:58 PM

---

My name is George von Liphart

My email address is gvonl@von-liphart.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
George von Liphart

From: Mike Regan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:29:33 PM

---

My name is Mike Regan

My email address is touring1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mike Regan

From: Robert Mokry
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:19:47 AM

---

My name is Robert Mokry

My email address is mokryrob@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Robert Mokry

From: Andy Herr
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:47 PM

---

My name is Andy Herr

My email address is afherr@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Andy Herr

From: Terrence Sullivan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:01 PM

---

My name is Terrence Sullivan

My email address is tjasullivan46@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Terrence Sullivan

From: Robert Vanderlaan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 10:03:17 AM

---

My name is Robert Vanderlaan

My email address is rsvanderlaan@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Robert Vanderlaan

From: Edmund Wattis
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:10 PM

---

My name is Edmund Wattis

My email address is eddywattis@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Edmund Wattis

From: Anthony Winogrocki
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:47 PM

---

My name is Anthony Winogrocki

My email address is sanfranciscotony@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Anthony Winogrocki

From: Linda Mathews
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 2:57:26 PM

---

My name is Linda Mathews

My email address is linda.mathews@yahoo.com

Please do the right thing and conduct the environmental review. Just because the permit was obtained without warrant, doesn't mean it cannot be repealed. What they did was very sneaky and doesn't sound legal actually.

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Linda Mathews

From: William Toth
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:31:29 AM

---

My name is William Toth

My email address is billgtoth@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
William Toth

From: Thelma Puechner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:12:25 PM

---

My name is Thelma Puechner

My email address is tpuechner@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Thelma Puechner

From: Della Dobranski
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:48 PM

---

My name is Della Dobranski

My email address is ddobranski@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Della Dobranski

From: Eddie Donnellan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:38 AM

---

My name is Eddie Donnellan

My email address is eddie@mewaterfoundation.org

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Eddie Donnellan

From: Maria Aldaz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:26:23 PM

---

My name is Maria Aldaz

My email address is mealdaz58@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Maria Aldaz

From: Jamie LaChapelle
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:20:36 AM

---

My name is Jamie LaChapelle

My email address is jamiedac@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jamie LaChapelle

From: Saw Lim-Skain
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:40:29 AM

---

My name is Saw Lim-Skain

My email address is sawlim@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Saw Lim-Skain

From: Ruth Dummel
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:01 PM

---

My name is Ruth Dummel

My email address is rdthesecond@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ruth Dummel

From: Frances Chiu
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:17 PM

---

My name is Frances Chiu

My email address is fkchiu@pacbell.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Frances Chiu

From: Timothy Boyle
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:29:55 PM

---

My name is Timothy Boyle

My email address is trboyleandson@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Timothy Boyle

From: Karl Baderschneider
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:31 PM

---

My name is Karl Baderschneider

My email address is karl.surfacetech@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Karl Baderschneider

From: Elisa Smith
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:30:08 PM

---

My name is Elisa Smith

My email address is elisa_smith1@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elisa Smith

From: Werner Blumer
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:37 AM

---

My name is Werner Blumer

My email address is wmb@cpuc.ca.gov

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Werner Blumer

From: Donna Levin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:45 PM

---

My name is Donna Levin

My email address is DonnaLevinsf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Donna Levin

From: Marc Pope
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:38 PM

---

My name is Marc Pope

My email address is marcspope@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marc Pope

From: Vincent Yuen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:31 PM

---

My name is Vincent Yuen

My email address is yyyyyvincent@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Vincent Yuen

From: Mabel Ng
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:13:01 PM

---

My name is Mabel Ng

My email address is mcfng@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mabel Ng

From: Natalie Podell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:02:38 AM

---

My name is Natalie Podell

My email address is natalie@podell.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Natalie Podell

From: Matthew Rhoa
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:10 PM

---

My name is Matthew Rhoa

My email address is matthew@brailer-rhoa.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Matthew Rhoa

From: Carol Carruba
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:46 PM

---

My name is Carol Carruba

My email address is carol@carolcarruba.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carol Carruba

From: Ira Le
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:23 PM

---

My name is Ira Le

My email address is lia4477@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ira Le

From: Roy Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:31:52 PM

---

My name is Roy Lee

My email address is roylee@sonic.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Roy Lee

From: Yi Chen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:59 PM

---

My name is Yi Chen

My email address is c.yilei@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Yi Chen

From: Denise Wilson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:56:02 AM

---

My name is Denise Wilson

My email address is Silverdew7@juno.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Denise Wilson

From: Melissa Rubin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:06:37 PM

---

My name is Melissa Rubin

My email address is melissaerubin@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Melissa Rubin

From: Alex Hartigan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:48 PM

---

My name is Alex Hartigan

My email address is alexhartigan@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alex Hartigan

From: Linda Ravano
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:06:35 PM

---

My name is Linda Ravano

My email address is lravano@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

I rely on the Great Highway when I commute to and from work. When the Great Highway is closed I feel cars travel at higher speeds on small streets which puts everyone in danger .

Additionally there were NO traffics studies done. Instead of re -painting lines and making the middle lane on Lincoln have arrows going both directions for people to turn from Lincoln to the great highway they put cones . Get it together . Please the increased traffic makes pollution worse with idling cars. I for one will ONLY vote for a Mayoral candidate that wants to reopen the great highway and JFK drive .

Sincerely,
Linda Ravano

From: Faith Schneider
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:13:25 PM

---

My name is Faith Schneider

My email address is fks6293@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Faith Schneider

From: Rebecca Ward
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:09 PM

---

My name is Rebecca Ward

My email address is rbccwrd@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Ward

From: Denise Wilson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:56:01 AM

---

My name is Denise Wilson

My email address is Silverdew7@juno.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Denise Wilson

From: Vivian Lem
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:40:30 AM

---

My name is Vivian Lem

My email address is vlem218@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Vivian Lem

From: Carol Chichester
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:22 PM

---

My name is Carol Chichester

My email address is ccchister@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carol Chichester

From: Cranson Tong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:31 PM

---

My name is Cranson Tong

My email address is loenbho@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Cranson Tong

From: Corinne Kan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:30:16 PM

---

My name is Corinne Kan

My email address is Nomad627@juno.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Corinne Kan

From: Davide Verotta
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:33 PM

---

My name is Davide Verotta

My email address is davide.verotta@ucsf.edu

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold, but from a resident, and avid bicyclist, of the Richmond district the situation is very simple.

Every week, Friday to Sunday, the traffic situation becomes chaotic in the whole area from Chain of Lakes to Ocean Beach. The traffic jam caused by the Great Highway closure makes the north-south commute across the Park a, heavily polluting, ordeal. At rush hour it can take 45' to cross the 0.3 miles.

And for nothing. Almost nobody actually bicycles from the eastern districts of San Francisco to the Great Highway. A few, we are talking dozens, get there using motored-bicycles and go for a spin on a strip of asphalt that has ALREADY a bicycle path built to its side.

It is absurd to close the Great highway, as absurd as closing 280, or 101 would be.

Please re-open it! Or at least open it during nights and rush hours.

best regards
Davide Verotta

Sincerely,
Davide Verotta

From: Annie Collier
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:19 PM

---

My name is Annie Collier

My email address is annie.e.collier@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Annie Collier

From: Nancy Wolf
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:35:14 PM

---

My name is Nancy Wolf

My email address is n.wolf@mindspring.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nancy Wolf

From: David Lew
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:38 PM

---

My name is David Lew

My email address is mze505@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Lew

From: Clay Hogan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:31:53 PM

---

My name is Clay Hogan

My email address is clay.hogan@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Clay Hogan

From: Nick Podell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:02:38 AM

---

My name is Nick Podell

My email address is nick@podell.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nick Podell

From: Stephanie Wildman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:44 PM

---

My name is Stephanie Wildman

My email address is smwshalom@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Wildman

From: Justin Ko
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:00 PM

---

My name is Justin Ko

My email address is daofficialpig@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Justin Ko

From: S Mark Varney
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:43 PM

---

My name is S Mark Varney

My email address is markvarney@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
S Mark Varney

From: William Isham
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:59 PM

---

My name is William Isham

My email address is ishwish00@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
William Isham

From: Judy Hollingsworth
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:48 PM

---

My name is Judy Hollingsworth

My email address is fortehouse1498@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Judy Hollingsworth

From: connie.lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:20:58 AM

---

My name is connie lee

My email address is conniemlvs@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
connie lee

From: Aine McGovern
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:36 AM

---

My name is Aine McGovern

My email address is atmcg10@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those like myself who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Aine McGovern

From: Grant Ingram
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:06:16 PM

---

My name is Grant Ingram

My email address is grant.ingram@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Grant Ingram

From: Jackie Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:08 PM

---

My name is Jackie Lee

My email address is blackbin@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jackie Lee

From: Mark Lerdal
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:54:57 AM

---

My name is Mark Lerdal

My email address is lerdalmark@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mark Lerdal

From: Roger Oyama
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:31 PM

---

My name is Roger Oyama

My email address is rojioyama@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Roger Oyama

From: Nicholas Podell jr.
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:02:41 AM

---

My name is Nicholas Podell jr.

My email address is nicky@podell.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nicholas Podell jr.

From: Jill Guertin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:01:56 PM

---

My name is Jill Guertin

My email address is jillks19@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jill Guertin

From: Beth Fox
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:38 PM

---

My name is Beth Fox

My email address is ehfox1013@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged, erratic, and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Beth Fox

From: Alan Yuan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:46 PM

---

My name is Alan Yuan

My email address is pingli28@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alan Yuan

From: Brian McLain
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:19 PM

---

My name is Brian McLain

My email address is brianmclain@mac.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian McLain

From: Gary Kendall
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:17:01 PM

---

My name is Gary Kendall

My email address is gary_k@pacbell.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gary Kendall

From: Annie Chang
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:28:07 AM

---

My name is Annie Chang

My email address is chang.annie@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Annie Chang

From: Sarah Epstein
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:35:14 PM

---

My name is Sarah Epstein

My email address is sarahepstein415@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sarah Epstein

From: Chris Ko
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:00 PM

---

My name is Chris Ko

My email address is christyko111@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Chris Ko

From: Evan Fowler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:42 PM

---

My name is Evan Fowler

My email address is robffowler@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Evan Fowler

From: Jeffrey Benningfield
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:33 PM

---

My name is Jeffrey Benningfield

My email address is jsbenningfield@mac.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey Benningfield

From: Yvette Torres
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:41:33 AM

---

My name is Yvette Torres

My email address is yvettetorres11@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Yvette Torres

From: Karen Knuth
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 4:48:42 PM

---

My name is Karen Knuth

My email address is kpuechner@mSN.COM

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Karen Knuth

From: AnnaMaria Cantwell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:21 PM

---

My name is AnnaMaria Cantwell

My email address is am.e.cantwell@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
AnnaMaria Cantwell

From: Samantha Fong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:34 AM

---

My name is Samantha Fong

My email address is mannie805@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Samantha Fong

From: Tao Wang
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:44 PM

---

My name is Tao Wang

My email address is twang@saicusa.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Tao Wang

From: Eugene Abezgauz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:59 PM

---

My name is Eugene Abezgauz

My email address is eabezgauz@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Eugene Abezgauz

From: Vera Genkin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:05:50 PM

---

My name is Vera Genkin

My email address is tuttgen@sonic.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Vera Genkin

From: Georgette Petropoulos
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:32 PM

---

My name is Georgette Petropoulos

My email address is georgettekp@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Georgette Petropoulos

From: Jeannie Pon
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:46 PM

---

My name is Jeannie Pon

My email address is jeanniepon2002@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jeannie Pon

From: Lyle Lowder
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:01:56 PM

---

My name is Lyle Lowder

My email address is llowder98@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lyle Lowder

From: Annie Pappin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:22 PM

---

My name is Annie Pappin

My email address is anniepappin@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Annie Pappin

From: Carolyn Lucas
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:24:16 PM

---

My name is Carolyn Lucas

My email address is cl78910@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carolyn Lucas

From: Julianne Okeefe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:34 PM

---

My name is Julianne Okeefe

My email address is jnokeefe@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Julianne Okeefe

From: karen kinahan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal;
chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:02 PM

---

My name is karen kinahan

My email address is karen.kinahan@ssf.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
karen kinahan

From: Kathleen M Tracey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:10:46 PM

---

My name is Kathleen M Tracey

My email address is ktracey35@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathleen M Tracey

From: ken flowers
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:20 PM

---

My name is ken flowers

My email address is kennethflowers123@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
ken flowers

From: Kat Regan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:59 PM

---

My name is Kat Regan

My email address is meemom@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kat Regan

From: John Park
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:43 PM

---

My name is John Park

My email address is josparkcom@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Illogical diversion of traffic into residential Sunset Blvd where there are also more schools! This is the opposite of "kid-safe"!

This public road is left wasted & unusable during weekend nights and in harsh weather that deters bicycle use, while it would be ideal for cars and safer than using Sunset Blvd.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Park

From: Kris F
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:08 PM

---

My name is Kris F

My email address is krsfong@yahoo.com

Please keep the Great Highway accessible to cars and local commuters!

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kris F

From: Shelley White
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:41:32 PM

---

My name is Shelley White

My email address is shelleyw1967@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Shelley White

From: Rodney D'Acquisto
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:54:57 AM

---

My name is Rodney D'Acquisto

My email address is rodney@cdsdist.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rodney D'Acquisto

From: Robert Fowler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:42 PM

---

My name is Robert Fowler

My email address is r2fowler@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Robert Fowler

From: Meredith Levy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:37 PM

---

My name is Meredith Levy

My email address is meredith@mwlfinejewelry.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Meredith Levy

From: Bo Bo Fung
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:28:10 AM

---

My name is Bo Bo Fung

My email address is y3829@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Bo Bo Fung

From: Steven Schroeder
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:50:46 AM

---

My name is Steven Schroeder

My email address is mcma111@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Steven Schroeder

From: Michael Dorf
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:09:04 AM

---

My name is Michael Dorf

My email address is michael_dorf@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Dorf

From: Michael Williams
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:55:20 AM

---

My name is Michael Williams

My email address is beegfluff@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Williams

From: Ernita O'Brien
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:05:49 PM

---

My name is Ernita O'Brien

My email address is ernob@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ernita O'Brien

From: Rita Hock
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:24:16 PM

---

My name is Rita Hock

My email address is truffletemptations@pacbell.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rita Hock

From: Gregg M
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:11:58 PM

---

My name is Gregg M

My email address is ggbgregg-g@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gregg M

From: Narine Kerelian
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:23 PM

---

My name is Narine Kerelian

My email address is n.kerelian@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Narine Kerelian

From: Randa Talbott
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:50:17 AM

---

My name is Randa Talbott

My email address is RANDATALBOTT@YAHOO.COM

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Randa Talbott

From: James Gold
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:19 PM

---

My name is James Gold

My email address is jamzgold.jg@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
James Gold

From: Esfir Shrayber
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:34 PM

---

My name is Esfir Shrayber

My email address is ekstati@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Esfir Shrayber

From: Aine McGovern
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:42 AM

---

My name is Aine McGovern

My email address is atmcg10@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those like myself who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Aine McGovern

From: Jennifer Chin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:56:56 PM

---

My name is Jennifer Chin

My email address is jenmchin@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Chin

From: Barbara Styles
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:36 PM

---

My name is Barbara Styles

My email address is bmstyles36@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Barbara Styles

From: Gary Forsyth
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:03:51 AM

---

My name is Gary Forsyth

My email address is garyforsyth53@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gary Forsyth

From: Gary Ockey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:59 PM

---

My name is Gary Ockey

My email address is tgbock@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gary Ockey

From: David Bass
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:08 PM

---

My name is David Bass

My email address is davidbasssf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Bass

From: Ken Bentubo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:34 PM

---

My name is Ken Bentubo

My email address is ken@bentubo.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ken Bentubo

From: Benson Hua
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:42 PM

---

My name is Benson Hua

My email address is bensonhua@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Benson Hua

From: Marc Joseph Rabideau
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:28:11 AM

---

My name is Marc Joseph Rabideau

My email address is marcrabideau@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

I have lived in The Richmond District for 45 years. I have a Physical Therapy Clinic in the Sunset at 18th Avenue @ Taraval Street for 30 years. I would like the Great Highway OPEN 24/7 now that the Pandemic has passed. Many of my disabled patients have difficulties accessing the Center for the Handicapped across from the SF Zoo. Especially challenging on weekends and when the GH closes at NOON on Friday, commuters and deliverers have a terrible time negotiating their routes. PLEASE RECONSIDER YOUR VOTE AND OPEN THE GREAT HIGHWAY AS IT WAS MEANT TO BE. THANK YOU FROM MARC JOSEPH RABIDEAU, PT.

Sincerely,
Marc Joseph Rabideau

From: Lisa Klinck-shea
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:18:03 AM

---

My name is Lisa Klinck-shea

My email address is lisa.klinckshea@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lisa Klinck-shea

From: Stephen Kitagawa
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:41 PM

---

My name is Stephen Kitagawa

My email address is ukester64@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stephen Kitagawa

From: Grace Lai
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:03 PM

---

My name is Grace Lai

My email address is gracelai888@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Grace Lai

From: Maria Dominick
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:44 PM

---

My name is Maria Dominick

My email address is bebeldominick@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Maria Dominick

From: Dick Robinson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:01:58 PM

---

My name is Dick Robinson

My email address is robinson27@aol.com

Please overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

Frankly, I'm tired of the bicycle coalition claiming rights to so many parts of SF that were either designed for autos or enjoyed by people who drive in order to see all of the City. The best way to bring a visitor from SFO to our District 2 in North San Francisco is via the Ocean Highway where many see the Pacific for the first time. Closing this to all traffic is a huge mistake and another win just for the bike riders who contribute little or nothing to the financial aspects of their continued claims on the City's roads and vistas. I gather SF Rec & Parks has failed to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit. This seems to disregard the Outer Sunset's community concerns and local impact of closing the Great Highway to cars. The redirection of thousands of drivers to and through surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike. For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

It's OK to close on some weekends just for an alternate's sake. But don't shut it down completely.

Please support the appeal and at least allow weekday use by cars/vans/light trucks of the Great Highway.

Thank you!

Sincerely,
Dick Robinson

From: Lynne Myers
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:57 PM

---

My name is Lynne Myers

My email address is lynneinsf@me.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lynne Myers

From: Pooi Li Yip
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:49:40 AM

---

My name is Pooi Li Yip

My email address is yip.lily@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Pooi Li Yip

From: Artie Kramer
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:45 PM

---

My name is Artie Kramer

My email address is artiekramer@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Artie Kramer

From: Angela Mendoza
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:50:14 AM

---

My name is Angela Mendoza

My email address is angela.mendozasf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Angela Mendoza

From: Deborah Freitas
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:45:40 PM

---

My name is Deborah Freitas

My email address is dfreitas@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Deborah Freitas

From: Devorah Joseph
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:24:17 PM

---

My name is Devorah Joseph

My email address is drdevisf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Devorah Joseph

From: Kathleen Lacey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:36 PM

---

My name is Kathleen Lacey

My email address is kathleen@thelaceys.org

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Lacey

From: Jeff Holland
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:07 PM

---

My name is Jeff Holland

My email address is imfeff@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jeff Holland

From: DEBRA HOWARD
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:18:19 AM

---

My name is DEBRA HOWARD

My email address is deb127@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
DEBRA HOWARD

From: Cynthia Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:28:48 AM

---

My name is Cynthia Lee

My email address is cyathena04@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Lee

From: Ed Tavasieff
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:40 PM

---

My name is Ed Tavasieff

My email address is edso_fish@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ed Tavasieff

From: Brenda Austin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:18 PM

---

My name is Brenda Austin

My email address is brendaaustinpnd@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brenda Austin

From: Mike Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:11:49 AM

---

My name is Mike Wong

My email address is d1_mike@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mike Wong

From: Paul Slade
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 1:58:16 PM

---

My name is Paul Slade

My email address is avenuespaul@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Paul Slade

From: Dennis Minnick
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:27:40 PM

---

My name is Dennis Minnick

My email address is dennis@415images.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Dennis Minnick

From: Eleanor Pollak
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:05 PM

---

My name is Eleanor Pollak

My email address is eleanor.pollak@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Eleanor Pollak

From: Barbara Wampner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:05:47 PM

---

My name is Barbara Wampner

My email address is endpin1@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Barbara Wampner

From: Layne Menn
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:44 PM

---

My name is Layne Menn

My email address is layne_behrens@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Layne Menn

From: Vanessa Pacheco
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:36 PM

---

My name is Vanessa Pacheco

My email address is vanessalp@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Vanessa Pacheco

From: wing lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:35 PM

---

My name is wing lee

My email address is wingli007@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
wing lee

From: Natalie Simotas
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:01:59 PM

---

My name is Natalie Simotas

My email address is Blueagyrl2@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Natalie Simotas

From: Wally Rosales
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:35 PM

---

My name is Wally Rosales

My email address is walterrosales837@comcast.net

To whom it may concern, I am a veteran public servant, in which I've been commuting from my home in the Richmond District for the last almost 30 years. It's a long commute that I take and without a doubt, my favorite part of my commute is driving northbound and southbound along the great highway. In the mornings, it gets me off to a great start to my day and prepare to go out there and keep the public safe, on my way home when I see the ocean I know I'm home.

Covid took that away from me and thousands of others that use the great highway every month. I understand this was a phenomenon that happened to our world and we had to deal with it. But now radical coalitions trying to take away this small joy from us that depend and love driving along the great highway permanently is just absolutely unfair! Most of these folks that are involved in this don't even live in San Francisco, taking this simple joy and RIGHT away from a long time resident of this beautiful city is an absolute crime to not only me, but to every person that needs and enjoys driving along the great highway.

I understand about sharing this beautiful area of San Francisco and I for one am okay with sharing it and having it closed on the weekends, but to completely take it away from us permanently is an absolute disservice, insult and crime to the residents of San Francisco, especially the Richmond District. Please, please, do not close permanently this great joy that brings thousands of us that have to commute and use the great highway.

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy

and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Wally Rosales

From: Lynne Muller
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:35 PM

---

My name is Lynne Muller

My email address is emikisses@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lynne Muller

From: Elinor Liberman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:33:54 AM

---

My name is Elinor Liberman

My email address is ebkljune@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elinor Liberman

From: Alex Vaisman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:45 PM

---

My name is Alex Vaisman

My email address is alx01234@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alex Vaisman

From: Steve Camahort
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:24:18 PM

---

My name is Steve Camahort

My email address is stevecamahort@paulhastings.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Steve Camahort

From: boris shevkhod
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:39 PM

---

My name is boris shevkhod

My email address is bshevkhod@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
boris shevkhod

From: Jamie C Wilson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:44:33 PM

---

My name is Jamie C Wilson

My email address is saamis@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jamie C Wilson

From: Darryl Woo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:35:38 PM

---

My name is Darryl Woo

My email address is ddddddah@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Darryl Woo

From: Thomas Henderson
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:45:19 AM

---

My name is Thomas Henderson

My email address is t.stephen.henderson@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Thomas Henderson

From: Raymond Stuart
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:39 PM

---

My name is Raymond Stuart

My email address is ray71143@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Raymond Stuart

From: Emily Chen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:29:14 AM

---

My name is Emily Chen

My email address is cjqemily@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Emily Chen

From: Linda Maher
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:17 PM

---

My name is Linda Maher

My email address is czyarrow@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Linda Maher

From: judith waitz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:54:43 PM

---

My name is judith waitz

My email address is judewaitz@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
judith waitz

From: Arnold Trogman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 2:28:46 PM

---

My name is Arnold Trogman

My email address is arnoldtrogman@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Arnold Trogman

From: Judith Stein
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:57 PM

---

My name is Judith Stein

My email address is judithastein@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Judith Stein

From: Kathleen Reilly
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:06 PM

---

My name is Kathleen Reilly
My email address is jreilly749@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Reilly

From: Greg Giachino
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:00 PM

---

My name is Greg Giachino

My email address is greg@emergebc.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Greg Giachino

From: Sharon Ng
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:05:47 PM

---

My name is Sharon Ng

My email address is SharonNgSF@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sharon Ng

From: Nancy Keane
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:06 PM

---

My name is Nancy Keane

My email address is nkeane17@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nancy Keane

From: Chris Lehman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:44:21 AM

---

My name is Chris Lehman

My email address is crlehman18@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Chris Lehman

From: Mark Won
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:27:26 AM

---

My name is Mark Won

My email address is mwon101@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mark Won

From: Paul Wattis III
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 10:05:43 PM

---

My name is Paul Wattis III

My email address is paul@wattis.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Paul Wattis III

From: Alex Lim
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:35:35 PM

---

My name is Alex Lim

My email address is mr_mpoee@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alex Lim

From: Stacey Ng
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:56 PM

---

My name is Stacey Ng

My email address is sboyleng@me.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stacey Ng

From: Exequiel Borromeo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:42:11 AM

---

My name is Exequiel Borromeo

My email address is jakeborr@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Exequiel Borromeo

From: Monika Rothenbuhler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal;
chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:33:29 AM

---

My name is Monika Rothenbuhler

My email address is Brandywine13@outlook.com

Please fully reopen the Great Highway.

Traffic does not just melt away. It just goes more through the Park and neighborhoods, not designed to handle freeway traffic.

IT'S A HIGHWAY and a great one at that. We have a whole park for us to recreate in, a wide beach, an extensive asphalt walkway... we don't need to walk/bike on the highway!!

Sincerely,
Monika Rothenbuhler

From: Jeremy Hughes
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:02 PM

---

My name is Jeremy Hughes

My email address is jeremymhughes@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Hughes

From: Koe Poon
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:16 PM

---

My name is Koe Poon

My email address is kslpoon@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Koe Poon

From: Kon Mironov
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:39 PM

---

My name is Kon Mironov

My email address is kon.mironov@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kon Mironov

From: Eric Zoglman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:44:12 AM

---

My name is Eric Zoglman

My email address is ericzog@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Eric Zoglman

From: Karen Cresci
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:02:30 PM

---

My name is Karen Cresci

My email address is klcresci@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

As a resident, I have seen the impact of the long term and now temporary closures first hand, and our neighborhoods are more dangerous due to increased street traffic on residential streets. There are paths on either side of the Great Highway. Please maintain them and there will be plenty of recreational space.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation.

SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Karen Cresci

From: Keelin Reddy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:46 PM

---

My name is Keelin Reddy

My email address is keelinreddy@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Keelin Reddy

From: Robert O'Donnell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:33 PM

---

My name is Robert O'Donnell

My email address is robert@wealthmechanix.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity!

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast!

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast!

Isn't it about time to consider fact that there is already a bike lane and sidewalk that parallels the Great Highway FOR ITS ENTIRE LENGTH?

Isn't it time to consider that long-time resident seniors and their families and caregivers have long appreciated a drive along the shore, to spend times together and get the benefit of the sea air?

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

With elections coming up, isn't it time to consider that FIAT CHANGES to this City is what is wrong with this city?

Sincerely,
Robert ODonnell

From: Glen Harvey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 2:41:18 PM

---

My name is Glen Harvey

My email address is gharveysf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Glen Harvey

From: Scott Tong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:24:19 PM

---

My name is Scott Tong

My email address is acumanscott@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Scott Tong

From: Anastasia Fink
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:44:33 PM

---

My name is Anastasia Fink

My email address is sfink1420@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Anastasia Fink

From: Ignacio Orellana-Garcia
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:10 PM

---

My name is Ignacio Orellana-Garcia

My email address is Volare232@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ignacio Orellana-Garcia

From: Rich Bridygham
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:27:58 AM

---

My name is Rich Bridygham

My email address is ricksf1723@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rich Bridygham

From: Leslie Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:37:33 AM

---

My name is Leslie Wong

My email address is molliespack@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Leslie Wong

From: John Qian
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:39 PM

---

My name is John Qian

My email address is jdqian@saicusa.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Qian

From: Rosemary Newton
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:06 PM

---

My name is Rosemary Newton

My email address is rosenewton@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rosemary Newton

From: Shawna McGrew
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:38 PM

---

My name is Shawna McGrew

My email address is Sunsetfog@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Shawna McGrew

From: Roy Edgar
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:19 PM

---

My name is Roy Edgar

My email address is roy.edgar@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Roy Edgar

From: Nathaniel Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:16 PM

---

My name is Nathaniel Lee

My email address is nathaniel813@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nathaniel Lee

From: Brian Chinn
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 6:02:20 PM

---

My name is Brian Chinn

My email address is cowbayc@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian Chinn

From: Tripti Sharma
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:44:34 PM

---

My name is Tripti Sharma

My email address is tbakhru@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Tripti Sharma

From: Kelly Faulkner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:56 PM

---

My name is Kelly Faulkner

My email address is Kellymariefaulkner@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kelly Faulkner

From: Erin Murphy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:37:09 AM

---

My name is Erin Murphy

My email address is minimurph22@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Erin Murphy

From: David Krucik
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:12 PM

---

My name is David Krucik

My email address is david.krucik@outlook.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Krucik

From: Mike Strain
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:38 PM

---

My name is Mike Strain

My email address is m_strain@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mike Strain

From: Harper Lindstrom
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:33 PM

---

My name is Harper Lindstrom

My email address is harperlindstrom@rocketmail.com

Please keep the existing arrangement in place for the Great Highway. There are so many people enjoying the Great Highway!

Sincerely,

Harper Lindstrom
94122

Sincerely,
Harper Lindstrom

From: Yasmin Staton
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:26:08 PM

---

My name is Yasmin Staton

My email address is ydmello@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Yasmin Staton

From: Wallace Gee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:42:12 AM

---

My name is Wallace Gee

My email address is wallace_gee@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Wallace Gee

From: Martin Denefeld
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:33:30 AM

---

My name is Martin Denefeld

My email address is martyden@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Martin Denefeld

From: Betty Yen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:55:11 AM

---

My name is Betty Yen

My email address is bettyyen111@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Betty Yen

From: Andie Rice
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:05 PM

---

My name is Andie Rice

My email address is BrownieAndie@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Andie Rice

From: ciara.piron
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:39 PM

---

My name is ciara piron

My email address is sfishome@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
ciara piron

From: Lisa Ryan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:47 PM

---

My name is Lisa Ryan

My email address is mookryan@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lisa Ryan

From: Venk Reddy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:37:27 AM

---

My name is Venk Reddy

My email address is venkreddy@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Venk Reddy

From: Betty Louie
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:04 PM

---

My name is Betty Louie

My email address is bettyjlouie@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Betty Louie

From: Bruce Patriquin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:35:35 PM

---

My name is Bruce Patriquin

My email address is creamtallu@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Bruce Patriquin

From: Lara Witter
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:40 PM

---

My name is Lara Witter

My email address is larawitter@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness.

Most importantly, a more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lara Witter

From: Sherrie Rosenberg
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:18 PM

---

My name is Sherrie Rosenberg

My email address is sherrie.rosenberg@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sherrie Rosenberg

From: BRUCE BOURNE
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:32:43 PM

---

My name is BRUCE BOURNE

My email address is BWBOURNE@SBCGLOBAL.NET

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

The Bicycle Coalition has gone from "Share The Road" to "Give us the whole damn road" and I think that is a travesty. Please don't give in to this sort of pressure from a special interest group.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
BRUCE BOURNE

From: Gabriel Donohoe
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:56 PM

---

My name is Gabriel Donohoe

My email address is gderek@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gabriel Donohoe

From: Grace Huey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:37 PM

---

My name is Grace Huey

My email address is hueygt@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Grace Huey

From: Elina Belotserkovskaya
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:57:52 PM

---

My name is Elina Belotserkovskaya
My email address is elinabel@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elina Belotserkovskaya

From: Kimberly Borromeo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:42:14 AM

---

My name is Kimberly Borromeo

My email address is ksktoh@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kimberly Borromeo

From: Heather Luongo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:41 PM

---

My name is Heather Luongo

My email address is heather.luongo@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Heather Luongo

From: Charlton Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:04 PM

---

My name is Charlton Lee

My email address is charlton.viola@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Charlton Lee

From: Elizabeth Okazaki
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:27:11 AM

---

My name is Elizabeth Okazaki

My email address is toobizilizi@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Okazaki

From: Bonnie Honniball
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:13 PM

---

My name is Bonnie Honniball

My email address is bonniehonniball@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Bonnie Honniball

From: Mark Staton
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:26:47 PM

---

My name is Mark Staton

My email address is msstaton@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mark Staton

From: Michael Jensen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:54:43 PM

---

My name is Michael Jensen

My email address is mistermikejensen@gmail.com

I urge you to confirm and protect the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to reject the appeals currently underway.

My family lives in the Sunset and opening the Great Highway to all types of use (except vehicles) has been an absolute treasure. The extremely narrow pathway cannot handle the amount of people who desire to use the Great Highway on weekends in particular- thousands of people every day who shop at local stores and restaurants, people who live locally and who travel for the world class views and healthy sea air.

If “closing” the Great Highway on weekends (a misnomer if I’ve ever heard one) deters automobile traffic- GOOD! These people never intended to stop for awhile- they merely want to drive through as quickly as possible- creating a dangerous situation for all the people who do want to use Ocean Beach or ride bikes, skateboards, scooters, etc.

I support better traffic engineering on Sunset Blvd and 19th Ave- but allowing the current appeals to close the Great Highway to family and nature lovers would be an absolute travesty.

Sincerely,
Michael Jensen

From: Irene Deutsch
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:32 PM

---

My name is Irene Deutsch

My email address is ideut8@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Irene Deutsch

From: David Soffa
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:33:30 AM

---

My name is David Soffa

My email address is soffad@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Soffa

From: Angela Tickler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:04 PM

---

My name is Angela Tickler

My email address is angela.tickler@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Angela Tickler

From: Antonai Cohen
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:16 PM

---

My name is Antonai Cohen

My email address is antonia_clark@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Antonai Cohen

From: Carol Satriani
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:29:29 AM

---

My name is Carol Satriani

My email address is carol@carolsatriani.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carol Satriani

From: Jamie Kendall
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:55:12 AM

---

My name is Jamie Kendall

My email address is jkendall301@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Jamie Kendall
Native San Franciscan
64 year resident of Richmond District

Sincerely,
Jamie Kendall

From: Laura Gilmore
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:47 PM

---

My name is Laura Gilmore

My email address is lauragilmore@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Laura Gilmore

From: Ira Schneiderman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:11:43 PM

---

My name is Ira Schneiderman

My email address is schneido@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ira Schneiderman

From: Carl Kaufman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engarddiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:48 PM

---

My name is Carl Kaufman

My email address is carl.kaufman@osterweis.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

Now the people are starting to go back to work it's time to return the rest of San Francisco to normalcy. In case you all have forgotten that means pedestrians on sidewalks, cars on streets, bicyclists obeying traffic laws and hopefully pedestrians looking both ways before they cross the street.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carl Kaufman

From: Linda Bork
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:03 PM

---

My name is Linda Bork

My email address is lkbork1215@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Linda Bork

From: Gail Rutherford
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:13:48 AM

---

My name is Gail Rutherford

My email address is gail\_rutherford@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gail Rutherford

From: Elyse Aylward
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:31 PM

---

My name is Elyse Aylward

My email address is elyse.aylward@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elyse Aylward

From: Catherine Madison
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:25:39 AM

---

My name is Catherine Madison

My email address is catherinekmadison@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Catherine Madison

From: Nickolas Mironov
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:46:20 AM

---

My name is Nickolas Mironov

My email address is nickvmironov@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nickolas Mironov

From: Mary Innes
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:30:50 PM

---

My name is Mary Innes

My email address is metuvilla@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Mary Innes

From: Kathy McCovey
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 1:43:56 AM

---

My name is Kathy McCovey

My email address is sfkamc@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kathy McCovey

From: Brian Adler
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:54:43 PM

---

My name is Brian Adler

My email address is familyadler@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian Adler

From: Curt Cournale
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:57:37 PM

---

My name is Curt Cournale

My email address is cmc@cournaleco.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Curt Cournale

From: Carol Faulkner
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:55 PM

---

My name is Carol Faulkner

My email address is artisfunn@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Carol Faulkner

From: Nathanael Tico
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:16 PM

---

My name is Nathanael Tico

My email address is nateotico@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nathanael Tico

From: Gina Tse-Louie
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:17:42 PM

---

My name is Gina Tse-Louie

My email address is Informed168@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

If we are to comply with RHNA requirements we must have ingress and egress, public transportation and other. We should be forward thinking and not reactive to housing needs. Giving a major thoroughfare away and then trying to take it back will be challenging. Please consider this in anticipation of new construction. Additionally:

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gina Tse-Louie

From: Beth McLaughlin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:16 PM

---

My name is Beth McLaughlin

My email address is yhwyrt@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike. There is already plenty of room on the promenade and walk and bike road that parallels the Great Highway for a bike and walking thoroughfare, while there is no easy way across the City from the Richmond District to the Sunset and Westlake without the Great Highway.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity. Further, the weekend closures result in difficulty getting to the cemeteries in Colma, a trip that should take 20 minutes can take over an hour when one gets stuck trying to cross the park, and taking local roads to get to Sunset Blvd.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Beth McLaughlin

From: Georgina Costales
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:05 PM

---

My name is Georgina Costales

My email address is gcostales@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Georgina Costales

From: Cristina Gutterman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:35 PM

---

My name is Cristina Gutterman

My email address is cristina.gutterman@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Cristina Gutterman

From: Michael Popoff
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:33:16 PM

---

My name is Michael Popoff

My email address is sfpoaads1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Popoff

From: Daniel O'Donnell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:17 PM

---

My name is Daniel O'Donnell

My email address is dodonnell88@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Daniel O'Donnell

From: Stephen Gorski
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:55:13 AM

---

My name is Stephen Gorski

My email address is sjgorskilaw@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Stephen Gorski

From: glenda.hope
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:08:47 PM

---

My name is glenda hope

My email address is sfnm@pacbell.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
glenda hope

From: John Ricci
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:16 PM

---

My name is John Ricci

My email address is jriccix@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Ricci

From: Laine Buckingham
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:35:04 PM

---

My name is Laine Buckingham

My email address is blainebb@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

Consideration for the health and welfare of the residents who live in and use roads we pay for has to have more importance. Open the Great Highway

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Laine Buckingham

From: Nathan Sammons
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:11:30 AM

---

My name is Nathan Sammons

My email address is nathansammonsdt@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nathan Sammons

From: Beatrix Lazard
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 1:43:57 AM

---

My name is Beatrix Lazard

My email address is beatie@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Beatrix Lazard

From: Cameo Jones
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:14 PM

---

My name is Cameo Jones

My email address is cameo.jones@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Finally, I oppose all of the closed streets in San Francisco. Unfortunately, I have been going to the Mission for medical treatment. What a mess! My GPS was unusable. Why is the street on the non-Valencia Side of Mission chopped up into closed off blocks. Why is Clay St in Presidio Heights still a slow street? It is hard to watch for pedestrians and bicyclists with so many changes to navigate. A real disaster.

Sincerely,
Cameo Jones

From: Peter Batanides
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:02 PM

---

My name is Peter Batanides

My email address is batanides@att.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Peter Batanides

From: Marian Heath
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:29 PM

---

My name is Marian Heath

My email address is mheath539@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Marian Heath

From: Irene Deutsch
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:18:44 PM

---

My name is Irene Deutsch

My email address is ideut8@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Irene Deutsch

From: Scott Brown
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:55:54 AM

---

My name is Scott Brown

My email address is scott@lisabyrne.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Scott Brown

From: Rick Peloquin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:24:20 AM

---

My name is Rick Peloquin

My email address is rickp71@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rick Peloquin

From: Brunero Cecchetti
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:46:22 AM

---

My name is Brunero Cecchetti

My email address is brunero@mac.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brunero Cecchetti

From: Josephine McGann
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:54:01 PM

---

My name is Josephine McGann

My email address is josiemcgann@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Josephine McGann

From: Alan Cresci
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:33 PM

---

My name is Alan Cresci

My email address is alan@cresci.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Alan Cresci

From: Charlotte McMinn
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:07 PM

---

My name is Charlotte McMinn

My email address is charminn@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Charlotte McMinn

From: Jack D'Angelo
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:59:05 PM

---

My name is Jack D'Angelo

My email address is dangelo60@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jack D'Angelo

From: Sean McGrew
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:33:22 PM

---

My name is Sean McGrew

My email address is ynsurf@hotmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sean McGrew

From: Louise Whitlock
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:15 PM

---

My name is Louise Whitlock

My email address is lcwhitlock@ymail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Louise Whitlock

From: stanlee.gatti
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:48 PM

---

My name is stanlee gatti

My email address is stan@stanleegatti.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
stanlee gatti

From: Andra Sadoun
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiosstaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:08:46 PM

---

My name is Andra Sadoun

My email address is sadounah@yahoo.com

Please revert the use of the Great Highway to its traditional purpose, to get from north to south on the western side of the city. So many cars are diverted to 19th Avenue, that it is always overcrowded. Traffic on the way to that thoroughfare is also much higher than it need be. Traffic through the park is also way higher than it need be. And traffic along the Lower Great Highway and 48th Avenue is like on a thoroughfare, although these homeowners certainly did not buy their houses there expecting to live on a busy north-south highway.

There is a fine walkway on the east side of the Great Highway, and the entire beach on the west side. Let drivers through on the Highway itself! We also enjoy the view while driving!

Thank you. Please do not let the closure of the Great Highway be permanent.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Andra Sadoun

From: Karen Growney
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:54 PM

---

My name is Karen Growney

My email address is karen@growney.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Thank you for your consideration,
Karen Growney

Sincerely,
Karen Growney

From: romando.lucchesi
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:58:08 AM

---

My name is romando lucchesi

My email address is romando9@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
romando lucchesi

From: ANDREW BILLS
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:10 PM

---

My name is ANDREW BILLS

My email address is abills@ddphealth.com

We urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

The closer of the the great Highway has made a meaningul negative impact on my day-to-day. In addition to the real concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
ANDREW BILLS

From: George Courtsunis
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:42:21 PM

---

My name is George Courtsunis

My email address is gjcourt@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
George Courtsunis

From: Hue Khuu
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:33 PM

---

My name is Hue Khuu

My email address is hue_khuu@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Hue Khuu

From: Omar Dudum
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:46:22 AM

---

My name is Omar Dudum

My email address is deepseadudum@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Omar Dudum

From: Jeffrey Fell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardioffice@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:55:50 PM

---

My name is Jeffrey Fell

My email address is felldown99@yahoo.com

Dear Board Members,

My personal message: Please leave the Great Highway open for cars. Having lived only in San Francisco for 30 years (1993 arrival) with the use of the Great Highway both for recreation along its boardwalk next to the seawall, and most importantly the slow 30 mph driving between the Cliff House, Sloat, and Lake Merced has been one of the pleasures of living in our city, and a useful and peaceful way to traverse the Richmond and Sunset without using 19th Ave.

I have used it to get to SFSU, Stonestown, the airport, to surf and swim, and to get to and from work. It is an essential traffic corridor. I do not know how to put it any simpler. And with the slow and staggered traffic lights it is not a dangerous road on which to drive. For 30 years this has been true.

Thank you, Jeffrey

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Fell

From: George Haris
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:14 PM

---

My name is George Haris

My email address is georgeharis3@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
George Haris

From: Emanuel Langit
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:32 PM

---

My name is Emanuel Langit

My email address is emanuel.langit@fastmail.fm

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Emanuel Langit

From: Brian Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 3:42:37 PM

---

My name is Brian Lee

My email address is subr8ar@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Brian Lee

From: Jonah Purinton
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:08 PM

---

My name is Jonah Purinton

My email address is jonah.purinton@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jonah Purinton

From: Paul Mohun
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:53:42 PM

---

My name is Paul Mohun

My email address is prm5@georgetown.edu

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Paul Mohun

From: Gerd Mairandres
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:16:30 AM

---

My name is Gerd Mairandres

My email address is gmairandres@aol.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Gerd Mairandres

From: Sharon Tang
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:17 PM

---

My name is Sharon Tang

My email address is wzt86@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sharon Tang

From: Matthew Denny
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 2:00:20 AM

---

My name is Matthew Denny

My email address is dennym999@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Matthew Denny

From: Diana Leong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:04:47 PM

---

My name is Diana Leong

My email address is dleong55@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Diana Leong

From: Irina Karpovich
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:56:34 AM

---

My name is Irina Karpovich

My email address is ikarpovich@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Irina Karpovich

From: Charlotte Pope
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal; chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:08:45 PM

---

My name is Charlotte Pope

My email address is charlotte.w.pope@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Charlotte Pope

From: William McDonnell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:53 PM

---

My name is William McDonnell

My email address is billmcdonnell22@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
William McDonnell

From: Ken Jones
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:01 PM

---

My name is Ken Jones

My email address is kdjones@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ken Jones

From: Elinor Liberman
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:28 PM

---

My name is Elinor Liberman

My email address is ebkljune@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Elinor Liberman

From: Lawrence Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 11:47:24 AM

---

My name is Lawrence Wong

My email address is petlarw@mindspring.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

- 1) Environmental Impact on Native Species - The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.
- 2) Emergency Response Delays - The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.
- 3) Increased Traffic and Accidents - The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

4) Elevated Air Pollution Levels - With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

5) Longer Commutes - For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lawrence Wong

From: Sandra Chan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 7:58:50 AM

---

My name is Sandra Chan

My email address is sandrachansf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sandra Chan

From: John Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:42:24 PM

---

My name is John Lee

My email address is jmlee128@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
John Lee

From: David Lewin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:18 PM

---

My name is David Lewin

My email address is dickielew@sbcglobal.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
David Lewin

From: Frank Tatko
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:02:09 PM

---

My name is Frank Tatko

My email address is ftatko@mac.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Frank Tatko

From: Rosemary McQuaid
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:15:29 PM

---

My name is Rosemary McQuaid

My email address is rosemaryjmcquaid@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rosemary McQuaid

From: Martin Murphy
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:05:49 PM

---

My name is Martin Murphy

My email address is martymurphy04@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Martin Murphy

From: Michael Cerchiai
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:28 PM

---

My name is Michael Cerchiai

My email address is mcerchiai@me.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Cerchiai

From: Kevin Growney
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:53:33 PM

---

My name is Kevin Growney

My email address is kevin@growney.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Kevin Growney

From: Boris Levine
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 2:36:44 AM

---

My name is Boris Levine

My email address is borlev@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Boris Levine

From: Ashley Dalzell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 9:01:47 PM

---

My name is Ashley Dalzell

My email address is ashleydalzell@mindspring.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ashley Dalzell

From: Denise Lee
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:14 PM

---

My name is Denise Lee

My email address is denise.m.lee@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Denise Lee

From: Simone Miller
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:01 PM

---

My name is Simone Miller

My email address is zenbellysf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Simone Miller

From: Nancy Federico
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 5:46:11 AM

---

My name is Nancy Federico

My email address is nlfederico@msnn.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Nancy Federico

From: Terry McDevitt
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:16:30 AM

---

My name is Terry McDevitt

My email address is dismasmcd@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Closed roads create longer driving distances and times which logically also creates more smog . Such closures also deny full access and use to all citizens/taxpayers .

Sincerely,
Terry McDevitt

From: Frank Keane
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 8:02:41 PM

---

My name is Frank Keane

My email address is fktri@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Frank Keane

From: Harry Wong
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:42:52 PM

---

My name is Harry Wong

My email address is hoarser_aphid.0i@icloud.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Vehicle Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Harry Wong

From: Judi Hurabiell
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:27:34 PM

---

My name is Judi Hurabiell

My email address is jmhurabiell1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Judi Hurabiell

From: Frank Schimaneck
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 7:45:32 PM

---

My name is Frank Schimaneck

My email address is feschimaneck@drydenlaw.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Frank Schimaneck

From: Michael Betz
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:10 PM

---

My name is Michael Betz

My email address is mbetz@allenmatkins.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Betz

From: Sam Lewin
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 12:28:19 PM

---

My name is Sam Lewin

My email address is samwlewin@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Sam Lewin

From: Michael Young
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 10:43:10 PM

---

My name is Michael Young

My email address is mhyoung510@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Michael Young

From: Ann Marie Porter
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 8:16:28 AM

---

My name is Ann Marie Porter

My email address is porterssf@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Ann Marie Porter

From: Jingwen Tan
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 8:21:36 AM

---

My name is Jingwen Tan

My email address is barrytan21th@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Jingwen Tan

From: Lilian Lynch
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Wednesday, February 7, 2024 6:15:29 PM

---

My name is Lilian Lynch

My email address is liliankim90@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Lilian Lynch

From: Anthony Jasinski
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:45:00 PM

---

My name is Anthony Jasinski

My email address is tonyjazzz@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Anthony Jasinski

From: Rebecca Tico
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:44:09 PM

---

My name is Rebecca Tico

My email address is ticobills@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Tico

From: Debra Harrison
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:52:30 PM

---

My name is Debra Harrison

My email address is debraharrison1@gmail.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Debra Harrison

From: Laura Puccini
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 3:40:47 AM

---

My name is Laura Puccini

My email address is l\_puccini@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Laura Puccini

From: Deborah Taylor
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 5:43:27 PM

---

My name is Deborah Taylor

My email address is debsuetay@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

Sincerely,
Deborah Taylor

From: Arthur Ritchie
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Monday, February 5, 2024 9:47:11 PM

---

My name is Arthur Ritchie

My email address is art3030@comcast.net

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

This lapse in following established regulatory processes raises serious questions about the permit's validity and, by extension, the legality of the pilot program itself. The omission of an environmental review overlooks potential impacts on native species, such as the Snowy Plover, and disregards the broader ecological and community implications of closing the Upper Great Highway to vehicular traffic.

The consequences of the pilot program and the procedural oversight are manifold:

Environmental Impact on Native Species: The increased pedestrian and cyclist traffic threatens the habitat of the Snowy Plover, a sensitive and endangered species, due to the lack of an initial environmental assessment.

Emergency Response Delays: The closure significantly delays emergency responders, compromising public safety by hindering access to critical areas along the coast.

Increased Traffic and Accidents: The redirection of thousands of cars to surrounding neighborhoods creates congestion and has led to a noticeable rise in traffic accidents, affecting the safety and well-being of residents and

commuters alike.

Elevated Air Pollution Levels: With vehicles rerouted closer to residential areas, air pollution levels have spiked, posing health risks to the community, particularly vulnerable groups such as children, older adults, and pre-existing conditions.

Longer Commutes: For those who rely on the Great Highway for efficient travel, the partial weekly closures have resulted in significantly more prolonged and congested commutes, disrupting daily life and productivity.

Given the oversight of not conducting an environmental review and the resulting impacts, I strongly urge you to support the appeals. Ensuring compliance with regulatory processes is essential for any project's legitimacy and effectiveness. A more inclusive approach considering recreational and transportation needs can help the Great Highway meet our community's diverse requirements. This balance is crucial for safeguarding the environment, ensuring public safety, and enhancing the quality of life in San Francisco, all while respecting legal and procedural standards.

I am an 84 year old Vietnam War vet with severe disabilities living in Glen Park. I can still drive but I have missed the last Memorial Day ceremonies at the USS San Francisco Memorial because of the closure of the Great Highway. Also, tourist trips for visiting friends and relatives have been avoided. Shame on you SFMTA.

Sincerely,
Arthur Ritchie

From: John Lum
To: boardofappeals@sfgov.org; engardiostaff@sfgov.org; MelgarStaff@sfgov.org; NorthCentralCoast@Coastal.chanstaff@sfgov.org; info@openthegreathighway.com
Subject: I Support Appeals: 23-062, 23-064 and 23-065
Date: Tuesday, February 6, 2024 6:11:37 PM

---

My name is John Lum

My email address is dalai\_lumma@yahoo.com

I urge you to overturn the Planning Commission's decision to issue the Coastal Zone Permit for the Upper Great Highway pilot project and to support the appeals 23-062, 23-064, 23-065.

This request stems not only from concerns over the impacts of the pilot program on urban mobility and public safety but also from significant procedural oversights in its implementation. SF Rec & Parks has bypassed critical steps required for such a considerable change, notably, the failure to conduct an environmental review before obtaining the necessary "Coastal Zone" permit.

